NAZIS SAY CONVOY DESTROYED

Two Killed By Bomb In Scranton Auto

High Winds Crumple Bridge at Tacoma

The middle span of the new $6,000,000 steel and concrete suspension bridge over the Puget Sound narrows at Tacoma, Wash., is pictured after it was crumpled by winds of gale velocity. The structure fell 300 feet into the waters below. Note car stalled a few feet from the break.

THINK EFFORT MADE AGAINST DOCTOR'S LIFE

Brother and Sister Mangled as They Open Door of Wired Car.

SUSPECT RELEASED

City Health Director Says He Knows of No Enemy Threatening Life.

(By Associated Press)

SCRANTON, Pa.—One suspect was questioned, but quickly dismissed, in an investigation today of the bomb deaths of the son and daughter of Scranton's public health director as detectives from other states joined in a widening inquiry.

The explosion last night brought immediate death to William Rebhorn, 19-year-old University of Scranton student, and his sister, Lois, 17.

Both were mangled as one of them touched the door handle of the family car in front of the Rebhorn home.

County Detective Joseph J. Rafter said the bomb apparently had been wired to explode as the automobile door was opened.

Fifteen minutes earlier, Dr. E. H. Rebhorn, the victims' father, left home to attend a hospital staff meeting. Contrary to his usual custom, he left the automobile at home—and walked to the hospital.

Rafter and other authorities said there still was no clear motive, but indicated there was a possibility a disgruntled patient of Dr. Rebhorn might have planted the explosive.

In addition to serving as director of public health, Dr. Rebhorn is a surgeon for a large coal company and often has given testimony on compensation claims. He said he had "no known enemies."

"If anybody had anything against me," Dr. Rebhorn said,

Palmer, Community Fund Secretary, Quits

Started Welfare Work In Mansfield 22 Years Ago.

The resignation of Sidney L. Palmer as executive secretary of the Mansfield Community Fund was presented to the executive committee last night and was accepted at a meeting at headquarters.

Robert Remy, vice president of the board, said today that Palmer's resignation would become effective as soon as a successor is named and becomes acquainted with duties of the office.

Palmer has been executive head of the Community Fund for the past 10 years, during which time the institution has been built up to its present standards and for the past four years has topped its goal in the annual campaigns for funds.

He began volunteer work for the fund 22 years ago when he served as captain of a campaign team and has been identified with every drive since then. During his service as executive secretary the status of the Community Fund had changed from that of a largely charitable institution to one concerned almost entirely with community welfare and character-building work.

When Palmer became secretary the Community Fund was the big relief agency of the city, but this work later was taken over by the city, county and federal govern-

Claim British North Atlantic Route Severed

S. O. S. Messages Indicated Attack Took Place Midway Between Newfoundland and Ireland; Germans Report 86,000 Tons Sunk.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(AP)—NBC today announced that the broadcast of a speech which Adolf Hitler was to have delivered over its Blue network beginning at 1:15 p. m. (EST) today had been cancelled.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—German surface warships operating on Britain's vital North Atlantic supply lane from Canada and the United States were reported today by the high command to have "destroyed completely" a British convoy consisting of 86,000 tons of shipping.

The communique did not amplify the announcement, but informed quarters said that the convoy was made up from 15 to 20 commercial vessels and that all the tonnage destroyed was commercial.

The convoy was said to have been heavily guarded by British warships.

(SOS messages from two British merchant vessels three days ago indicated that attack took place about midway between Ireland and Newfoundland. They reported that one of Germany's pocket battleships was shelling them.

(With the scuttling of the pocket battleship class leader, Admiral Graf Spee, in Montevideo harbor last December, Germany is known to have only two of the pocket battleships left, the Luetzow and Admiral Scheer.

(The German radio declared that the following conclusions could be drawn:

("In a false feeling of security, the leaders of the convoy had not reckoned with dangers from attacks in this part of the Atlantic ocean.

("Their confidence in the scope of British naval protection thus has been sorely destroyed."

(The broadcast said that the German success had "caused consternation in British admiralty circles." A London dispatch, however, said that British authorities refused to comment on the German claim.)

Informed German quarters elatedly commented that Germany had dealt a hard blow to Britain's vital North Atlantic lifeline, supply route from Canada and the United States.

For the past two days German reports have told of a growing aerial offensive against British shipping, as a supplement to the counter-blockade by U-boats and surface raiders. Germans boasted that their planes had carried their recent attacks more than 300 miles west of Ireland into "regions where hitherto the enemy felt safe."

Going back to yesterday's aerial assaults on shipping, the daily communique said that five bombers attacked a "big convoy" off the Thames estuary, badly damaging a 10,000-ton cruiser and causing a merchant ship of the same size to halt and show a heavy list.

In the same attack a 5,000-ton freighter was set afire and another of the same weight sunk after a heavy explosion, the communique said. Off the Norfolk coast a British merchant ship was sunk and still another set aflame while farther south a 6,000-ton merchant ship was struck by two bombs and heavi-

GOP Vote Strength Points Opposition

Tussels With New Deal Over Domestic Issues Loom In Next Four Years; Willkie to Give Statement.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Resurgent Republican strength reflected in the steadily growing totals of Tuesday's presidential vote presaged today some stiff political tussles over domestic issues in the months ahead.

As new tabulations swelled President Roosevelt's third term vote to greater portions and simultaneously raised Wendell L. Willkie's record Republican ballot total, it became increasingly clear that on many policies the Democratic administration in the next four years would face a more determined and more enthusiastic opposition than it has in the last eight.

Whether that legislative conflict would center entirely on controversies already familiar, or whether new elements might appear was still a matter of conjecture, pending declarations of intentions by the leaders of both parties.

President Roosevelt gave no indication in his campaign of contemplating a major program of new legislation for submission to the next congress in January.

On the contrary, all his utterances tended to discount such expectations. In effect, he told the voters that his first term had been given to launching what he considered necessary reforms his second term had been devoted to consolidating "advances," and his third term would be devoted to forwarding those accomplishments while helping the nation weather the great world "storm" now raging.

The first broad new statement of Republican plans to be made since the election will be given

ELEMENTS WIN BRIDGE BATTLE

Six Million Dollar Tacoma Span Falls In River Under High Wind.

(By Associated Press)

TACOMA, Wash. —(AP)— The elements won in the battle for the $6,400,000 Narrows bridge, and the floor of the world's third longest suspension span lay in Puget sound today. But man and his science will try again.

Agitated and twisted by a wind of gale proportions, the colossal structure, which only four months ago was dedicated as a monument to engineering science, crumbled, then collapsed with a mighty roar yesterday into the white-crested waves of the sound.

There was no loss of human life. Two men—an engineer and a newspaperman—who were on the bridge when it began to twist violently, miraculously escaped, even as sections of the floor began hurtling into the waters 200 feet below.

Tubby, a cocker spaniel riding in the car with Leonard Coatsworth, Tacoma newspaperman, was not so fortunate. Coatsworth had to abandon his car to save his

YOUTH INJURED

Falls Off While Riding on Front Bumper of Auto.

William Myers, 19, of 223 Park avenue east found out the hard way this morning that a bumper of a car is no place to joy ride.

Riding on Wayne street on the front bumper of an automobile, Myers fell off the vehicle and received severe lacerations over the right eye and forehead, abrasions about the hands and knees, and cuts over the right cheek and chin.

He was taken to General hospital by his mother, Belva B. Myers, where he was treated and sent home.

SOURS NAMED HIGHWAY HEAD

Beightler Resigns Because of Duties at Camp Shelby.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Hal G. Sours, with more than 20 years of road building experience behind him, today assumed control of Ohio's highway department.

Sours, a 46-year-old native of Summit county, was named by Governor John W. Bricker to succeed Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, commanding officer of the 37th division of the U. S. army in training at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Beightler resigned yesterday explaining that he "did not think the highway department should be under an acting director for a long period of time."

'PECK' PICKED

Paper Says Peckinpaugh Will Be Tribe Manager.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Cleveland News said today it had been informed by two usually reliable sources that Roger Peckinpaugh, once-fired manager of the Cleveland Indians, has been chosen to pilot the 1941 team.

"I hope that's right," Peckinpaugh commented. "I know I'm still in the running."

President Alva Bradley, who earlier said a manager would be announced next Tuesday, would not confirm the report.

The News quoted him as saying in New York that Peckinpaugh was "one of three leading candidates." He named Luke Sewell, present Indian coach, as another, but Sewell has belittled his chances.

"There's something in the wind that prevents my talking about that third man at this time," Bradley observed.

LOTHIAN KNIGHTED.

LONDON —(AP)— King George today conferred a knighthood of the order of the Thistle, one of Britain's most distinguished orders, on the marquess of Lothian, British ambassador to the United States.

Lord Lothian is now in England on a brief furlough.

MONEY SHORT, 20 LOSE JOBS

City Street Department, Hit By Lack of Funds, Forced To Curtail Ranks.

The Mansfield street department, struggling with financial difficulties the past three months, suffered another blow today as 20 employes were laid off due to lack of funds in departmental coffers.

It is the second time within the past six weeks that the workers have been dismissed from the payroll. Late in September, the men were ordered to take two-week vacations, half of the force alternating on the job for two-week periods.

Early last month, council appropriated $2,000 and the men were called back to put streets in shape for winter driving.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said today that funds for maintaining the full crew of 39 workers were threatened and 20 of the men had been laid off to keep within the appropriation.

The workers notified of their dismissal two days ago include laborers and civil service employes. It could not be immediately learned how many were under the merit rating system.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said

Say Chamberlain Gravely Ill, But Stays In England

LONDON—(U.P.)—Neville Chamberlain, former prime minister, was described today as "gravely ill."

The former prime minister resigned from the cabinet recently because of illness, but he denied reports that he would go to California in an effort to recover his health.

Chamberlain is 71. He was prime minister throughout the critical period leading up to the war and was representative of a policy of "appeasement" at one time.

Later, when the war started, the Conservative leaders called for a fight to the finish against Nazism.

3-YEAR HIGH

Mansfield Bank Clearings Climb To $8,299,062.

Mansfield bank clearings climbed to $8,299,062 in October, highest for any month in the past three years, figures released by Barney Burns, secretary of the clearing house association, showed today.

Clearings for last month, which topped the October, 1939, figure by $340,366, boosted the total for the first 10 months of the year to $77,038,552. At the same time last year, clearings amounted to $71,133,842.

Usually one of the best months from the standpoint of money turn-over, October also marked the first time in the past three years that Mansfield clearings went above eight million dollars. Clearings have been above seven million dollars, however, every month since August, 1939.

WILLKIE IN '44 CLUB ORGANIZED

Evanston Supporters Claim He Deserves Another Chance.

EVANSTON, Ill. —(INS)— Wendell Willkie's backers in Evanston, far from dismayed by the election result, today were organizing what may be the nation's first "Willkie for president in 1944 club."

Justice of the Peace George W. Harrison, sponsor of the club, telegraphed Willkie that the huge popular vote given him last Tuesday entitled him to "a return bout with the champ." The "Willkie Crusade" must go on, Harrison said.

'LOVELESS'

Wife of Movie Star Edmund Lowe Asks Divorce.

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)— Edmund Lowe, veteran screen actor, today was defendant in a suit for divorce filed by his second wife, Mrs. Rita Kauffman Lowe, who complained that her husband was "loveless" in his attitude at home.

Charging extreme cruelty, Mrs. Lowe accused the suave actor of associating with other women, of nagging her without reason, and of being captious and critical in his treatment of her.

REPULSED: Italian Forces Hurled Back By Greek Guns

ATHENS—(AP)—The concentrated fire of Greek artillery and anti-tank guns was reported today to have hurled back Italian mechanized forces attempting to pierce the main defenses of the Metaxas line near the shores of the Ionian sea in a drive toward Ioannina.

The high command said that all attacks in this sector, where the Greeks previously had acknowledged making "a slight retreat," had been repulsed.

A government spokesman declared: "The situation is thoroughly satisfactory."

(The Italians yesterday claimed new gains on this end of the front, declaring their troops had crossed the Kalamas river and established a bridgehead on its east bank.)

Elsewhere on the 100-mile front extending along the Greek-Albanian border from the Ionian sea to the Yugoslav frontier little activity was reported.

On their extreme right flank the Greeks apparently still were clinging to their mountain positions dominating the Italian base of Koritza, 10 miles inside Albania.

Italian attacks on the Greek left flank in the Epirus sector, reported yesterday as apparently the beginning of a major offensive, thus far have resulted in purely "local" fighting, a government spokesman said.

Reports from Cairo said the British middle east command was giving valuable air and naval aid to Greece, but that it was moving cautiously because of the necessity

ATTACKS: Random Raids on London Beaten Off By RAF

LONDON — (UP) — German planes from formations broken up by British fighters and anti-aircraft fire penetrated the London area today, dropping bombs at random and causing daylight air raid alarms and dogfights over the city.

During the second alarm about 20 planes bombed at random but it was believed that they had been forced to jettison their explosives when attacked by a squadron of British fighters.

Earlier German attempts to raid the capital were thrown back by the British defenses.

The first wave consisted of about 20 planes, flying at great height. A second wave of about a dozen Messerschmidts followed.

There was an air raid alarm in the London area because of the threat but no bombs were dropped and no planes were seen here.

Other German planes were reported over Midlands, southeast and southwest England towns.

There was an unusually short air raid period during the night. The German planes bombed heavily during the first part of the night but there was a long lull before the all clear came.

During the first hours of the raid bombs were scattered over many districts of Greater London and gun fire was so intense that windows rattled and buildings shooks.

High explosive bombs struck an ambulance depot in the outskirts and caused casualties. Occupants of a shelter and residents of a charity home for aged persons escaped unhurt when bombs struck.

Mansfielder In Canada New 'Man Without Country'

Labeled as a "man without a country," James J. Collins, 54, former Mansfield man, is being held in prison at London, Ont., unable to prove that he was born in the United States.

Collins, a printer who formerly worked on Mansfield News, left here two years ago. Last August he was arrested in London, according to a story carried this morning by Canadian Press, an affiliate of Associated Press, and has been held there ever since because of inability to establish his status as a citizen of this country.

Members of his family, still living here, said today that his birthplace was Hillsdale, Mich., but that it was possible there was no birth certificate recorded at that time.

At the time of his arrest two months ago, deportation proceedings were started against him by Canadian officials, but the United States refused to accept him after officials on this side of the border failed to establish a birth place. His parents and all of his relatives in Michigan are dead, according to members of his family here.

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS RELEASED

Grandmother Promises to Care for Abandoned Babies.

SANDUSKY—(INS)— Mrs. Clara Lucille O'Brien, 23, today was able to rejoin her husband,a traveling salesman, after charges of abandoning her twin baby sons on the steps of a rectory last week were withdrawn.

Police dismissed the charges when the maternal grandmother, in Springfield, Mass., promised to care for the babies.

Mrs. O'Brien told police she left the children because they hindered her traveling with her husband.

Tells Sensations as Bridge Fell Under Him at Tacoma

(Editor's Note: Prof F. B. Farquharson was on the writhing Narrows bridge when its center span collapsed into Puget Sound. He had been engaged in laboratory research for several months at the University of Washington in an attempt to correct the sway of the span. His account of the bridge collapse follows.)

By PROF. F. B. FARQUHARSON

TACOMA, Wash. —(AP)— I was the only person on the Narrows Bridge when it collapsed. It wasn't bravery on my part. I didn't believe it would happen, and besides, I was anxious to get a motion picture of the unusual way the bridge was acting for my official records.

When I arrived about 9:45 a. m., the bridge was moving in a normal way, in the familiar rippling motion we were studying and seeking to correct.

About half an hour later it started a lateral twisting motion in addition to its vertical waves. It had never done that before. There was considerable noise of stress and strain. As the motion increased in severity, lamp posts were jerked back and forth in a side motion and at least six snapped off while I was on the bridge.

I noticed one auto stalled in

There were 79 fatality claims filed during the month and 19,120 claims of all types.

CANADIANS TO ENLARGE SUGAR BEET ACREAGE

New Movement Part of Self-Sufficiency Campaign By Province.

(By United Press)

WINNIPEG, Man.—The campaign to make the province self-sufficient in production of foodstuffs is expected next year to result in the harvesting of enough sugar beets to meet the demands of the population.

The campaign was stimulated by reports of sugar beet farmers and the local refinery that this year's crop of 17,000 acres would produce approximately 300,000,000 pounds of refined sugar. The province normally consumes 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 pounds of sugar annually.

Farmers are expected to plant 25,000 acres to beets next year and to increase the average yield from this year's 7½ tons per acre to 12 to 14 tons. The crop this year approximated 120,000 tons.

Experience has taught the farmers that a smaller area intensively cultivated will produce a better yield.

A Mexican expert recently visited the beet-growing district advising farmers and factory employes how to handle beets.

The provincial government plans to cooperate with farmers in eradicating pests. A system of crop rotation has been worked out. During in-between years when the land is not planted to beets, wheat, potatoes and other crops will be grown.

G. H. Aikins, K. C., son of the late Sir James Aikins, former lieutenant governor of Manitoba, is one of the leaders in the campaign.

She contacted him, and now Mrs. Rich, a widow, is living here with her brother.

The newly mounted reptile is eight feet long and four feet high and a predecessor of the dicynodont mammals. It is a new species of the dinodontosaurus family.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Alva Bradley is hurrying here from Cleveland, and the boys are wondering whether he'll talk to Babe Ruth. . . . Harvard coaches won't say so out loud, but they think they have a chance to upset Penn tomorrow. . . . Where does Tennessee get all that high class football talent? Well, Coach Bob Neyland says he could put two better than fair teams on the field composed entirely of Knoxville boys. . . . The gossips say the baseball trade winds will blow Eddie Miller of the Bees to Cincinnati for Billy Myers and $60,000 next month.

TODAY'S GUESS STAR.

C. L. (Poss) Parsons, Denver Post: "I am going into the tough Southwest conference for the week's most likely upset—Arkansas to topple a favored Rice eleven. . . . It's homecoming at Fayetteville, and the Razorbacks have their bristles up for this one."

FRESHMEN LOSE TO OHIO VARSITY, 20 TO 13

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Even the Ohio State freshmen cash in on that second half "slow down" habit of the varsity Buckeye football team.

The yearlings were trailing 20 to 0 at the end of the third quarter of their annual scrimmage with the regulars yesterday. Then the freshmen, paced by Paul Sarringhaus, All-Ohio scholastic back from Hamilton, roared back with two touchdowns in the final period and turned the final score into a respectable 20 to 13 loss.

HEALTH WALK

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Walking three miles every day will strengthen your heart and lungs, according to Lawson Robertson, veteran Olympic track coach. Robertson gave this advice to a committee headed by John B. Kelly, who has been asked by President Roosevelt to organize a national physical preparedness program

Picks Texas To Win

Barker Also Likes Gophers, Stanford, and the Fighting Irish.

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK — (AP)—Taking another crack at the football guessing game with no money refunded cheerfully or otherwise:

Minnesota-Michigan; Might decide the Western conference title in this one, particularly if Minnesota wins. No unbeaten team in the land has waded through quite such a schedule as the Gophers. They must hold Tommy Harmon within reasonable bounds to get by undefeated Michigan. By the toss of a coin, Minnesota.

Southern Methodist-Texas A. and M.' The Mustangs are plenty tough and might break Texas A. and M.'s long string but this corner prefers to string along with the Aggies.

Stanford-Washington: Maybe this is where the Indians get off but we'll tag long with Stanford to the bitter end.

Cornell-Yale: Should be batting practice for the Big Red. Cornell. Fordham-Purdue: The Boilermakers are unlucky and Mike Byelene may not be in shape for much service, influencing this vote for Fordham. Columbia-Wisconsin: In a deep fog. Wisconsin.

Navy-Notre Dame: Taking Notre Dame on the theory the Irish can't be as bad as they looked last week. Alabama-Tulane: Out of the hat. Alabama

Penn-Harvard: Penn. Princeton-Dartmouth: Taking Princeton. Army-Brown: A doubtful vote for Army.

Holy Cross-Mississippi: Mississippi. Manhattan-Marquette: Manhattan Northwestern-Illinois: Northwestern. Nebraska-Iowa: Nebraska Detroit-Texas Christian: By the coin, Detroit.

Indiana-Michigan State: An extremely shaky vote for Michigan State. Auburn-Clemson: And one of the same for Auburn. Florida-Georgia: Georgia. Kentucky-Georgia Tech: Tech seems to have collapsed. Kentucky. Louisiana State-Mississippi State: Stringing along with the Mississippians.

Furman-Virginia Tech: In a complete dither, Furman. Richmond-North Carolina: North Carolina. Duke-Davidson: Duke. North Carolina State-Wake Forest: Wake Forest. South Carolina-Kansas State: A flier on South Carolina. Virginia-Washington & Lee: Virginia. Kansas-Oklahoma: Oklahoma. Colorado-Missouri: Missouri. Tulsa-Catholic: Tulsa. Texas-Baylor: Still Texas.

Arkansas-Rice: Arkansas. Southern California-California: Southern California should be thoroughly rested and gets the nod here. Oregon-U. C. L. A.: U. C. L. A. finally should win one. Oregon State-Washington State: Oregon State. Maryland-Georgetown: Unbeaten Georgetown.

Pitt-Carnegie: Pitt should take this one. Rutgers-Lafayette: Lafayette. Syracuse-Penn State: Penn State. Temple-Villanova: Villanova. New York university-Franklin & Marshall: F. and M.

* * *

Also: Boston college over Boston university; Iowa State over Drake; Vanderbilt over Sewanee; Tennessee over Southwestern (Tennessee); William & Mary over Randolph Macon; Washington university over Virginia Military; Utah over Wyoming; Denver over Brigham Young; Colorado State over Utah State; George Washington over Bucknell; Williams over Wesleyan.

Shakeup Likely In Cubs' Ranks

Chicago President Hopes to Find Winning Combination.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— A shakeup of the Chicago Cubs, probably starting at the top, impended today as Owner-President P. K. Wrigley looked for the combination that would take the National league club out of the doldrums.

Wrigley, who like his father is the major stockholder of the Cubs, decided yesterday the club had the "wrong combination" and volunteered to resign the presidency if Charles (Boots) Weber, vice president and business manager, would take over. Weber has indicated his desire to retire from baseball.

"I don't know whether I'm doing the wrong things for the benefit of the club or not," Wrigley said. "I never was a baseball man and it's too late in life to learn enough to run the club on my own. Meanwhile I'm going to take all the blame for the showing we've made to date."

The Cubs finished in the second division this year.

"In starting at the top and going down through the ranks, I don't mean personal changes. I mean first of all to see what I'm doing wrong," he said.

He specifically absolved Cub Manager Charles Hartnett from blame, but indicated that Hartnett's fate as well as that of ailing arm pitchers Jerome (Dizzy) Dean and Clay Bryant would rest with any new management.

"I don't propose to turn over the new management, whatever it be, old tools," he said.

PLAYER SUSPENDED

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Indefinite suspension of Jack LaBay, fullback and place kicking star of the Columbus Bulls football squad of the American Pro league, for "insubordination" was announced today by Coach Phil Bucklew. The Bulls entertain the Buffalo Indians here Sunday.

Big Ten Club May Perform

Champion Team Might Get Rose Bowl Call.

CHICAGO—(INS)— The Chicago Herald American declared today it had learned "on good authority" that there still is a possibility the Big Ten football champion will meet the Pacific Coast Conference champion in the Rose Bowl on New Year's day.

Asserting that the Pacific Coast conference is eager to have the matter settled, but that "it is a question how long they will wait" for the Big Ten's answer, the newspaper added:

"Wisconsin and Minnesota have been against the plan since its proposal. Proponents of the idea, however, still hope to get the Big Ten approval in time for the 1940 champion to play at Pasadena in the coming game."

Whether the Big Ten will approve the suggestion that the champions of the two conferences meet each year in the Rose Bowl, is expected to be voted upon at a western conference meeting Dec. 6, but this may be longer than the coast conference cares to wait for a decision.

* * *

Another obstacle to straightening the matter out this year is a conference regulation giving faculty members 60 days for review and objection to any proposed change in Big Ten rules. The rule as it now stands forbids post-season competition by conference members.

SAYS REARMING HAS HANDICAPS

Iowa State Economist Claims U. S. Can Retain High Standard of Living.

(By United Press)

AMES, Ia.—The United States temporarily can rearm and maintain its high standard of living at the same time, in the opinion of E. D Allen, Iowa State College economist.

"We have large supplies of unused labor and resources that we can draw upon to produce airplanes, tanks and shells before we need to subtract from consumer goods production Increasing payrolls for defense industries will increase the demand for consumer goods and create a whole new production chain," he explained

Allen warned, however, "when we do reach the full use of our unemployed labor and resources, we shall have to squeeze consumption in order to expand arms.

"It appears now that the United States government will spend more than $36,000,000,000 for national defense in the six-year period which started last July 1. Within two years we may be spending eight to ten billion dollars a year.

"For the next two or three years at least it appears that the government will obtain most of the money for the defense program by borrowing, as it did in the depression, and by increased taxes falling largely on savings and not on consumption"

He predicted that because the country does not now have large numbers of unemployed laborers and because of its ability to increase facilities to produce consumer goods, both armaments and consumer goods will be available for some time

"But although we can do this for a while, the huge increase in spending is not going to be invested in plant equipment to turn out consumer goods at a later date, as is usually the case in an industrial boom"

OLD PROBLEM

ASHLAND—The county board of health undertook the solution of a seven year old problem of the county when they ordered the removal of hog feeding pens from the farm of George Kunkel. The city garbage has been fed to the hogs on this farm. Mayor Howard Lutz, Kunkel, R. D. Lutz and Gene Vantilburg received copies of the order to remove the pens within ten days.

A plan designed by Howard Maxheimer will make possible the use of the incinerator at the sewage disposal plant if a conveyor can be obtained, is the belief of the mayor.

ISSUES KEEP UP FORWARD TREND TODAY

Gains, However, Were on More Restricted Scale In Stock Market.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks continued to move forward in today's early market dealings but gains were on a more restricted scale.

Inflation thinking, brokers said, still was the principal market motivator although profit taking on yesterday's upsurge was a restraining factor.

Major United States financial and commodity markets will be closed Monday in observance of Armistice day. Only livestock and some produce markets will operate.

Among hopeful signs on the trade horizon, market analysts found encouragement in the survey of Dun & Bradstreet disclosing another jump in this week's retail store activities throughout the nation.

Spending picked up substantially in the wake of the election, it was said, and purchases averaged 6 to 9 per cent over the corresponding 1939 period.

OPPOSITION TO FDR INDICATED

Republican Voting Strength Hints Political Tussles In Next Four Years.

by Willkie Monday night in an address broadcast from New York. Announcing this last night after a conference with Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., and other party leaders.

Willkie said that "in view of the fact that between 22,000,000 and 23,000,000 peopple voted for me I feel an obligation to state my position."

Latest tabulations of the election results meanwhile gave this picture of the standing of the two candidates with 120,444 voting units already counted out of 127,245:

President Roosevelt—carried 38 states with a total electoral vote of 449. His popular vote stood at 26,265,134.

Wendell L. Willkie—Carried 10 states with a total electoral vote of 82. His popular vote stood at 21,787,102.

The Republican reaction to this total, the highest ever won by a Republican candidate, was summed up yesterday by Joseph W. Martin, jr., chairman of the party's national committee.

Announcing for "national unity" and for a "strong defense," he said "it is our purpose to take full advantage of the new and progressive leadership and support that has come to us in this campaign."

"We shall support the president," he added, "when not in conflict with the great principles for which we fought in this crusade."

To this he added the prediction that "in 1942 we will elect a Republican congress and prepare the way for a greater victory in 1944."

Republican strength in the presidential race carried over to some extent into senate contests, producing a net gain of four seats, but in the house the gains went to the Democrats.

The new senate will have 28 Republican members, as against the present 24; 66 Democrats compared with 69 at present; one Independent and one Progressive. Three of the new Republican seats were picked up from the Democrats; the fourth resulted from the re-election of Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota presently a Farmer-Laborite, who went over to the Republican ticket and won.

In the house, the Democrats picked up 9 seats for a total of 267. Republicans elected 162 members. At present 258 of the 435 house members are Democrats, 167 are Republicans and there are two Progressives, one Farmer-Laborite, one American Laborite and six vacancies.

Willkie Works On Monday Broadcast

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Wendell L. Willkie began work today on a message to the more than 20,000,000 persons who voted for him on the role he believes they should play in President Roosevelt's third term.

He gave every indication that he would be as unusual as a defeated presidential nominee as he was a candidate.

He obtained 30 minutes on all three networks—NBC, CBS and MBS—at 10:30 p. m., Monday to tell the nation which would not elect him president, how he intends to continue a "crusade" for governmental policies which differ in many respects from those advocated by Mr. Roosevelt, whom the voters gave another term.

Willkie declined to reveal his personal plans before he talks, and would not confirm reports that the Willkie clubs, headed by "political amateurs" largely responsible for his nomination, and which, before Tuesday had thousands of members, would be continued indefinitely as a personal political organization.

SECRETARY OF FUND RESIGNS

Palmer Started Welfare Work In Mansfield 22 Years Ago During First Campaign.

ment. During the early years of the depression Palmer started the "Potato Ball" plan by which several hundred bushels of potatoes were raised and distributed to needy families and the next year he organized the community canning project which netted 3,600 cans of fruit and vegetables for families on relief.

He took the first CCC registrations in Mansfield when 186 young men signed up for federal service. He was one of the organizers of the Mansfield Council of Social Agencies and served as its secretary for several years.

Palmer had years of training for personnel and case work before coming to the Community Fund. As a young man, he served as assistant superintendent of the Children's Home for 10 years during the time his father, the late H. C. Palmer, was head of the institution, and during a part of the 18 years he was with the Ohio Brass company he was in personnel work.

Palmer gave ill health as his reason for resigning his position. In December, 1939 he was struck by an automobile at Diamond and Park avenue east, suffering a serious skull fracture.

Remy said today that a number of applications had been received by the board for the position but that no action was taken at yesterday's meeting.

CLAIM BRITISH NORTH ATLANTIC ROUTE SEVERED

Nazis Report Entire Convoy Destroyed By Pocket Battleship.

ly damaged, according to this report.

The high command acknowledged British raids last night on western Germany in which explosive and incendiary bombs were said to have been dropped on "some towns" of Rhine province, damaging houses, killing several persons and wounding others.

Heavy Raid Made On Krupp Works

LONDON—(U.P.)—British bombing planes have made what may prove to be the heaviest raid of the entire war on the gigantic Krupp armament works at Essen, heart of the German industrial Ruhr, the air ministry disclosed today.

"During the night Royal Air Force bombers carried out an exceedingly heavy attack on the Krupp works at Essen," a brief communique said.

"Attacks also were made on oil targets in Germany, on the invasion ports and on enemy airdromes in France."

Use of the word "exceedingly" to describe the raid, indicated that it was of extraordinary extent. The air ministry is sparing of such words in communiques.

It had been forecast when Air Marshal Sir Charles Portal became chief of air staff a month ago that British counter-offensive operations would be stepped up promptly.

Since then there have been widespread British attacks on Germany, invasion ports, and German airdromes in occupied territory. Royal Air Force planes also have intensified attacks on Italy and have bombed the Naples area twice.

The Krupp plant is one of the largest armaments works in the world. In 1918, toward the end of the last war, it employed 167,000 men.

The air ministry in giving details of its attacks on Germany early Thursday morning named a long list of objectives attacked.

An important airplane engine works in the Spandau suburb of Berlin, railroad and freight yards northwest of Berlin, the important Rhine harbors of Duisburg, Ruhrort, Mannheim and Ludwigshafen; oil refineries at Leuna and Hamburg, a railroad junction at Pretzsch, railroad yards at Hamm, Mainz and Cologne; factories near Cologne and Dusseldorf, an airdrome at Bolitz and the dock era of Dunkirk, France, were attacked despite bad weather which compelled the British to fly blind through heavy clouds and storms.

ELEMENTS WIN BRIDGE BATTLE

Six Million Dollar Tacoma Span Falls In River Under High Wind.

life. And the terrified Tubby nipped at the knuckles of Prof. F. Q. Farquharson, the engineer, who attempted to release the dog. As Farquharson and Coatsworth made their separate and precarious ways to safety, the car and the cocker spaniel fell into the sound.

A. F. Andrew, chief engineer of the Washington Toll Bridge authority, was announced that plans for rebuilding the bridge would be undertaken immediately, attributed the tragedy to "substitution of plate girders eight feet in depth for a truss design which had previously been planned." He explained:

"The solid metal expanses acted like a sail, catching the wind and swinging the bridge. We had planned to bore holes to allow the wind to pass through, but had not had time."

It was a race with the elements that the engineers lost. From its opening, the bridge had shown menacing signs of sway whenever a high wind whipped up. There was an up-and-down swing that gave motorists a sea-sick feeling.

A $20,000 model of the span consequently was constructed and was studied by engineers seeking a means of arresting the sway.

With the scrutiny of this model, engineers discovered the bridge was susceptible, in certain wind conditions, to a twisting motion which might mean the crash of the structure.

The state carried insurance of $5,200,000 on the bridge, plus insurance against loss of tolls. Lieut. Col. Lavcey W. Murrow, state director of highways when the span was built, estimated it would cost about $3,000,000 to rebuild, if the super-structure should prove a total loss.

Andrew, in expressing his opinion as to the cause of the collapse, said it was the first time the solid plate girders had been used in a bridge so long and narrow. The structure, reaching from the mainland outside of Tacoma to the Olympic peninsula, is over a mile long. The collapse came in the 2,800-foot center suspension span.

The towers holding the 17-inch cables were bent about 12 feet out of line, but Andrew said the towers might be utilized in reconstruction. He said the cables, also, were probably all right, but they would be inspected to determine whether they were frayed. He estimated the bridge could be rebuilt by next July 4.

Prof. Farquharson, who directed the experiments on the laborator model, disclosed the tests had produced the twisting motion that caused the collapse.

"We watched it," he recalled, "and we said that if that sort of motion ever occurred on the real bridge, it would be the end.

"We had hopes, and I am sure we could have found the remedy if we had only been given a little more time."

The bridge was constructed with a PWA grant of $2,800,000 and an RFC loan of $3,500,000. It cut 50 miles from the traveling distance between Fort Lewis and the U. S. navy yard at Bremerton.

Andrew said a Tacoma contracting firm (Woodworth and Cornell) would start today to dismantle the concrete from the sagging approaches.

Leon S. Moisseiff of New York, designer of the bridge, said he was "completely at a loss to explain the collapse." He telephoned Andrew that he was sending a representative from the east. Ralph Keenan of the Pacific Bridge company, the bridge builders, flew up from San Francisco to inspect the wreckage.

SLIM MARGIN

Willkie Takes Michigan By Only 6.615 Votes.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Complete unofficial returns on Tuesday's election today showed that a record-breaking 2,059,087 ballots were cast in Michigan with Wendell L. Willkie winning the state's 19 electoral votes by a slim margin of 6,615—a difference of less than one percentage point.

The final unofficial count was:

Willkie 1,032,851.
President Roosevelt 1,026,236.

President Roosevelt received 8,600 more votes than he did in 1936 when he defeated Alf Landon in Michigan by 217,000 votes, but the record turnout raised the Republican margin sufficiently to pass him.

RAF BEATS OFF RANDOM RAIDS

Tower of London and Danish St. Clements Church Hit By Bombs.

St. Clement Danes church in the Strand were damaged in recent German air raids, it was disclosed today.

The turret and one wall of the Tower of London were hit. Bombs tore down walls eight feet thick enclosing the warden's quarters. A section of the wall as large as a 10-ton truck fell into the moat.

St. Clement Danes church was completed in 1682 from designs by Sir Christopher Wren. In its tower spire hang the bells of the nursery rhyme, "Oranges and lemons, say the bells of St. Clements." Each March 31 children of the parish receive oranges and lemons.

The original church on the site probably received its name from a settlement of Danes in the neighborhood. St. Clement Danes now is the unofficial church of the Danish colony in London.

The tower is on the bank of the Thames adjoining the boundary of the city. Once a citadel, never seriously assaulted, it also has served as a royal palace, a state prison and a mint. It is regarded historically as the most interesting spot in England.

The tower comprises an irregular mass of buildings erected at various periods and surrounded by a double line of wall, strengthened with towers, and by a deep moat. In the center rises the square Norman or white tower.

of keeping its forces ready to meet a threatened Italian drive towards the Suez.

Order Civilians From Koritza

OHRID, JUGOSLAV FRONTIER —(U.P.)— Albanian authorities have ordered civilians to evacuate Koritza, one of the major Italian military bases in Albania, because of continuous bombardment of the city by Greek artillery, frontier reports said today. Greek guns emplaced in the Morova mountains were said to be shelling Koritza.

Frontier dispatches said also that 10 Italian planes bombed Larissa, Greece, this morning, killing one and wounding six persons. It was reported that 30 bombs were dropped on Janina, killing two and wounding five.

Reports of activity of Albanian rebels continued. It was said that rebels killed 21 Italian soldiers and captured 40 troopers and three sergeants and considerable stores of ammunition.

The Italians were reported to have been ambushed on the El Basampogradec road near lake Ohrid.

Vatican Shocked At Bomb Threat

VATICAN CITY —(INS)— Shocked by a warning from London that British bombers may attack Rome, the Holy See prepared to appeal today for renewed British assurances that the Eternal City will be spared the horrors of air raids.

(Editor's Note: The British warning was issued yesterday by British Foreign Undersecretary R. A Butler, who told the house of commons in London that Britain "reserves full liberty of action in regard to Rome" since Italian planes and aviators have participated in attacks on London.)

A spokesman for the Holy See said that Vatican circles were "surprised and alarmed" at the British government's intimation of its intention to bomb Rome.

According to the spokesman, the Holy See plans to appeal for renewed British assurances that Rome will not be bombed.

Such assurances ,the spokesman said, were requested and obtained from London prior to Italy's entrance into the war on the basis of Italian assurances that Italy woud not bomb London.

Vatican circles asserted that German communiques three times have mentioned Italian participation in bombing attacks on England, but that Italian bombing of London has never been mentioned in Italian communiques or through other Italian official channels.

New Intensity In Greek Warfare

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia —(AP)— Fighting on the northern Greek-Albanian front was reported to have reached new intensity today, causing observers on the Yugoslav border to predict that a decisive battle was shaping up in the sector.

Heavy cannonading was heard on both sides and the Italians increased their air activity.

Larger groups of Fascist bombers were reported to have attacked Greek divisions east of the Koritza-Phlorina highway and Greek fortifications at the Pisoderi pass through the mountains.

Fighting also was said to be going on around Lake Prespa.

Guerilla tactics of the Greek troops were said to be scoring against massed Italian mechanized operations in areas presenting great obstacles to the use of modern arms.

Greeks were reported to have brought up anti-aircraft batteries to strengthen defenses on Biklishta heights.

One report declared only three Italian divisions were engaged against seven Greek divisions but Italian equipment was reported far superior. Italian soldiers said the Greeks had been unable to cross the Devol river east of Koritza.

the balance in street funds available for labor amounted to about $4,800, enough to maintain the force of 19 now on the job until the end of the year.

Crafton announced, however, that six of the men dismissed had been given work at the sewage disposal plant, landscaping the grounds under the direction of Plant Superintendent James R. Turner.

He said he did not know what men had been rehired and Turner could not be reached.

Council authorized the landscaping work to be done at Tuesday night's meeting and transferred $1,500 from a PWA construction fund to finance the labor.

The project calls for grading and seeding part of the grounds marked by erosion and the planting of shrubs to eliminate further disfigurement of the grounds.

MAN ON BRIDGE WHEN IT FELL

Engineer Relates Sensations as Tacoma Span Buckles Under High Wind.

the middle of the span. Previously I had seen two men near the car. They were deathly sick. They stumbled and crawled to the Tacoma end.

I looked in the car and saw a dog in there. Then I went ashore to get some more films for my camera, and walked out on the careening span again.

About 10 minutes later, as the pitching, twisting and rolling increased, the dog occurred to me again. Since I love dogs, I staggered out to mid-span again and opened the door and tried to coax him out. The animal, sick and terrified, bit me on the knuckle.

Then I gave up the attempt, deciding that even if I succeeded in getting the dog out he'd probably fall overboard. So he stayed and plunged to death in his master's car.

A few minutes later I saw a side girder bulge out on the gig harbor side, due to a failure, but though the bridge was buckling up at an angle of 45 degrees the concrete didn't break up., Even then, I thought the bridge would be able to fight it out.

Looking toward the gig harbor end, I saw the suspenders—the vertical steel cables—snap off and a whole section of the bridge caved in.

The main cable over that part of the bridge, freed of its weight, tightened like a bow string, flinging the suspenders into the air like so many fish lines.

I realized the rest of the main span of the bridge was going so I started for the Tacoma end. Behind me, the rest of the bridge plunged into the sound.

By that time I was between the tower on the Tacoma side and the Tacoma short. I thought I was out of danger, but suddenly the bridge dropped from under me. I fell and broke one of my cameras.

I got up and started, only to have the bridge fall out from under me again.

The part of the bridge I was on had dropped fully 30 feet, due to the sudden shift of weight on the main cable.

It was one of those things that couldn't happen once in a thousand years, a combination of conditions that no one anticipated.

(Farquharson suffered only minor bruises and abrasions).

MANSFIELDER'S BOOK ADDED TO LIBRARY LIST

'Voyage To British Isles,' By Charles McKinley Tells of 'Old England.'

A first book by a Mansfielder, Charles McKinley, was added to the shelves at the Mansfield Public library this week. It is entitled, "A Voyage To the British Isles," and is a delightfully pleasant and sensitive account of the author's quiet ramblings in England.

He knew just where to get the effects of "old England," and carefully avoided the England known to tourists. His was a spiritual tour, and the little pictures and incidents he gives accent themselves against a tragic background now and look more and more irretrievable.

In memory of the late Margery Bird Zahniser, the Wednesday Study club has presented Agnes Rothery's "Virginia, The New Dominion" to the library. In this volume, illustrated by E. H. Suydam, Miss Rothery emphasises Virginia as it is today, but also shows how the New is but a blending and outgrowth of the Old. A memorable impression of the spirit and personality of the Virginians themselves is given, and the author writes that their art "is not to be measured by the tangible output of the poet, painter, musician, or sculptor, but rather, in an instinct for graceful living."

New fiction:

Nora Lofts' picaresque novel HESTER ROON is the story of a girl of dubious paternity who lived 200 years ago. Born and brought up secretly in the attic of an old English inn, Hester's colorful career leads her to London where she falls into low company and at last is shipped to the West Indies. There at length her position is transformed with dramatic suddenness.

Although GIVE ME LIBERTY by John Erskine is essentially the story of an innocent bystander, the dominant character is young Patrick Henry. The period portrayed—those years just before the revolution—shows any innocent bystander that he is caught between two hostile forces and must reckon with both sides, reactionary and radical. A definite application to modern times also.

THE VOYAGE by Charles Morgan is the story of Barbet Hazard, a vine-grower, and Therese Despreux, who became a celebrated star in the Parisian cafe-concerts of the eighties. "The Voyage" is the life—approached with such different views—which these two create together.

Other fiction:

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES by Harsanyi.

HIGH SIERRA, Burnett.

CLEOPATRA'S TEARS, Keeler.

On the non-fiction list:

GROWING PAINS by Wanda Gag, prominent not only as an artist but also in the field of children's literature, is rare Americana—poignant, amusing and absorbing—to be read with pleasure by those who wish to recall their own younger days and those who are interested in watching the growing up of an unusual girl and the making of a fine artist. The book is made up of Miss Gag's diaries and drawings for the years 1908-1917 and is concerned with the Wanda Gag of fifteen to twenty-four years.

MY SHADOW AND THE SUN by Frances Davis is a personal account of a young American girl who through sheer perseverance, courage and ability became a foreign correspondent with the first-row seat when the guns began to go off in Europe. It is more than just a personal adventure, it is an inside picture of how a war is reported and of those who report it.

Mystery and adventure await the readers of these two new stories of California. Both boys and girls will enjoy the mystery of Marcos in the first and Peck's trip to California in search of gold in the second.

THE BUTTERFLY SHAWL, by Grade Dawson—Luisa had been promised a shawl from China the very next time the Boston ship came to the harbor at San Pedro. When it came the shawl had been sold. As Luisa and her father returned to their Spanish rancho they met Marcos who couldn't remember who he was or where he had been. The butterfly shawl that had been promised to Luisa helped her family to learn the story of the lost boy.

WALKING ON GOLD, by Phyllis Crawford—Peck Woods lived in Van Buren, Ark., when travelers were passing through on their way to California in search of gold. Peck was an orphan boy who ran away from his aunt to join such a group of pioneers. His long trip with his faithful mule ends by his discovery that he was walking on gold anywhere in California.

Harmony Among Opponents After Election

The United American rally at New York's Carnegie hall, attended by leading Republicans and Democrats, resulted in closer harmony musically, if not politically, between the two groups as they joined in singing "America." Pictured in this group are, left to right, George Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; Howard Coonley, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, Robert Jackson, U. S. attorney general, and Dr. Clarence Dykstra, Selective Service administrator, and former president of the University of Wisconsin.

Mansfield Urged To Participate In Health Contest

Plans for Mansfield's participation in an annual health conservation contest sponsored jointly by the United States Public Health association and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce were laid before health department and chamber officials today.

Dr. B. J. Horning, New York City, a representative of the U. S. P. H. A. consulted Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner and chamber officers yesterday, urging them to enter the city in the contest.

Awards of merit will be made on the basis of a well rounded program in public health for the calendar year of 1941, Dr. Horning said.

Mansfield won honorable mention in nation-wide participation in 1936, 1937 and 1938, but failed to enter the contest last year.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1940.

This year's Armistice day might be more appropriately regarded as Armament day.

The "two party system" is so highly commended where it is in use that the Solid South might do well to adopt it.

There's an ominous note in the tidings that workmen in New York are tearing down "The World of Tomorrow"—even while Europe's dictators are demolishing the world of today.

Unity Essential To Preparedness

AFTER the tumult and the shouting subsides, when all precincts have been accounted for and time given for analysis of election results in various states, it will become apparent that tremendous Roosevelt majorities piled up in big cities, plus the practical unanimity of voting in the Solid South bloc, accounted for the approximate four and a half million majority of President Roosevelt over Wendell Willkie in the total popular vote of around 50,000,000.

Even in a preliminary way it has been interesting to note the number of states in which one, or several big cities were depended upon to offset Willkie majorities throughout the remainder of these states and to turn the electoral votes to the Roosevelt column.

Such a situation evidences a disturbing cleavage of thought between majorities in big cities and majorities in small cities, towns and rural sections.

Accepting the re-election of President Roosevelt to a third term as a conscientious expression of majority wishes, it can not safely be disregarded by him, or by the more than a million public employes who will continue to be associated with him in the administration of government, that a sizable minority of well above twenty million voters were as conscientiously opposed to his re-election.

Remembering the animosity that has been reflected in the voting of the Solid South for almost three quarters of a century, it may be considered fortunate that other states in the union are not inclined to harbor such bitterness, else the two party system—essential to the survival of a democracy—would long since have been in the discard.

Fortunately there was little disagreement on foreign policies during the progress of the recent campaign. It was largely on New Deal domestic policies and the third term issue that the campaign was waged and these divergent views will continue to be held as firmly as heretofore.

Sincere differences of opinion, however, will not prevent full support of President Roosevelt's program for adequate national defense, all possible aid to Great Britain "short of war", and continued efforts to guard the United States and the entire Western Hemisphere from totalitarian aggression.

In matters such as this there is no serious division of thought among patriotic Americans. In the interests of national security, well-being and progress, the unity of minority and majority rises high above partisan or class differences.

Neglected Judicial Ballots

WITHOUT such intention, Ohio's non-partisan judicial ballot is apparently effective in setting up an intelligence test which confines choice of judges to voters who are able to read the names of candidates, rather than being guided by the picture of an eagle or rooster at the top of the party ballots.

In Richland county, for instance, where 36,317 votes were cast for president, the judicial ballots marked for supreme court and court of appeals judges totaled less than 26,000 and votes for probate judge fell about five thousand short of the total cast for governor.

This would indicate that around thirty per cent of the voters in Richland county either didn't care to be bothered about selecting judges, or regarded themselves as incompetent to express an intelligent preference. Among those who voted the judicial ballot it may also be safely assumed that a considerable percentage was influenced by political party affiliation or the advice of friends, rather than by their own knowledge of the qualifications of candidates.

Particularly in the matter of filling positions on the state supreme court, there appears to be strong arguments in favor of appointment of judges, instead of electing them—if some way can be found to do this without injection of partisan politics into the process.

When Conscience Kills Sleep

PUNISHMENT inflicted by a guilty conscience has just cleared up a Cleveland "hit-skip" case in which a motorist fled after his car hit and killed a pedestrian.

The 21-year-old youth told police that he was driving, after having "three beers," and that, after realizing that he had struck a man, he became scared and did not stop.

"I haven't slept a wink since," he admitted after telling his story to the police.

That's one of the annoying features about wrongdoing—either with serious or minor offenses—the way in which conscience nags . . . preventing sound sleep and causing constant worry over the possibility of detection.

Wonder how the fellows who committed acts of vandalism at Johnny Appleseed junior high school recently, and the ones who have been committing petty thievery around town, are sleeping these nights—and how soon one of them will decide that he'll feel better if he tells about it?

Airplane Jobs for Older Men

THE AIRCRAFT industry, like the air force, is usually thought of as a young man's business. Now, however, aviation authorities say that older men—those 40 and over—are needed in some jobs in aircraft plants.

Officials of one plant making airplanes for defense say they prefer men of 45 for certain jobs and are employing men up to 62 years as machinists, inspectors, and tool and die makers. They find the older men more successful in supervisory work.

Drafting is another occupation they call "logical for older men," since it does not require much physical effort.

Some of these opportunities will be beyond older men who have never had any training along such lines. If they have not had broad shop experience it may be hard to fit them into specialized shop work now. But men who have come up with such work should be in no danger of being laid off because of age, and others capable of learning new skills may fit themselves for these jobs with considerable assurance of a chance to work in them.

The "me, too" member of the Axis is now taking his cut.

BURYING THE HATCHET

Muzzled Criticism Now Released

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Now that the election returns have passed into history, we will hear a lot of things and see some fireworks on which there has been a time fuse until the count of the ballots had been concluded.

One of these is a tremendous Democratic protest against the shipping of machine tools to Soviet Russia. Many Democrats in the house and senate would have broken out about this before now had it not been for the fear that what they said might have an effect on the presidential campaign.

William S. Knudsen's pointed remarks that the production of aircraft in this country encountered a bottleneck because of the scarcity of machine tools made a deep impression on many senators and representatives. Then when they found that part of our machine tools were being released to the Communists, thus slowing down future production of airplanes in this country both for our own national defense and for Britain, some of them went straight through the ceiling. But they kept themselves muzzled, for the most part, because of political repercussions.

That danger being removed, every one excited about it is now free to speak.

THERE is also the matter of gasoline. The embargo on aviation gasolene does not apply to ordinary gasoline, which is still being shipped to Japan in large quantities.

Many congressmen are asking: If we are going to hit them at all, why hit softly? Also: Why all this favoritism for Russia?

During the campaign, of course, senators and representatives who have talked at all have talked with the intention of helping the candidates they wanted to win. Plenty of the Democrats disagreed profoundly with President Roosevelt. Plenty of the Republicans disagreed just as profoundly with Wendell Willkie. Plenty of both disagreed violently with both Roosevelt and Willkie.

We are going to hear a lot more about that much advertised army bomb sight, now that the election is over. No official statement has been obtainable, though readers of these dispatches know that the army had worked out a device declared to be 100 per cent effective in destroying the bomb-sight if anything happened to the plane, and thus guarding its secret.

But since that time there has been a very persistent, though unconfirmed report, that this government has given the bomb sight to the British.

A good many congressmen want to know about that.

THE lid is off, now, and we are going to hear plenty. Lots of the statesmen are ready to take their hair down and call spades something else besides agricultural implements.

Lots of Democrats who were criticizing federal spending, the Labor Relations Board, Secretary Perkins, Harold Ickes, et al., are going to open up again. Lots of Republicans who were just sick over Willkie's views, as expressed in speeches, are going to sing a very different tune now.

The next election is two years off. For two-thirds of the senators it is further off than that, half of these having four sure years and half six sure years if they live, no matter how they vote or what they say.

And, outside of campaigns, most senators like to say senatorial things—it gets them publicity. And the boys do like to see their names and pictures in the newspapers.

Are Women Lawless?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE HAD a queer jolt lately. It came through the discussion we've been having over secret Frats and Sororities in Public High Schools. There are laws against such societies in many of our states—a particularly tough one in California where High School principals are empowered to expel any youngster who joins such clubs.

In San Francisco the registration cards quote the law and add pledges to uphold it which parents and pupils are requested to sign. Yet the Frats go merrily on. What about it? we asked. And have been swamped with letters ever since.

They are fine letters, mostly from mothers. In the majority of cases, the writers commend the article — condemn organizations which discriminate between youngsters in tax-supported schools. They've High School students of their own, they write. Then continue:

"It's terrible the way such clubs affect the poor youngsters. Of course they all want to be in. If they're not, it just about breaks their hearts. And if they are in, they get so excited they can't put their minds on their lessons. Besides it's so terrible expensive. Think of 13-year-olds paying $15 for initiation dues—$30 each time they have a dance. All those formals for the girls, and the boys—often before they're 15 - wanting Tuxes. It doesn't seem right. Can't something be done about it?"

Other mothers, however, are highly indignant that the system should be questioned. Billy—or Bessie -- have such wonderful times at their clubs. And they meet the nicest people! Why on earth should I want to deprive young children of perfectly innocent fun? Letters applauding, letters deploring an anti-frat crusade. But, now comes the jolt, note this peculiar fact.

In only three letters, out of several hundred, did a mother refer to the law itself or seem in the least concerned with its violation or the effect upon their children of such defiance.

IN ONLY THOSE THREE DID THE MOTHERS SEEM TO REALIZE OR GIVE A DARN THAT THEY WERE AIDING THEIR CHILDREN TO BE LAW-BREAKERS THEMSELVES, WHEN THEY ALLOWED THEIR CHILDREN TO JOIN SUCH ORGANIZATIONS AFTER READING THE LAW AND PLEDGING THEMSELVES TO UPHOLD IT.

Queer work at the crossroads. I'll say! I hold no brief for male morality. But men, as a sex, are conventional critters with a natural respect for the legalities. To the average father, the pledge on that registration card would be a binding obligation. And, theoretically, the Little Woman is far more sensitive to ethics than her spouse. Yet there's some mighty strange evidence. And ever since I collected it, I'm asking a question I can't answer.

ARE WOMEN THE LAWLESS SEX? AND IF SO, WHY SO?

Is the average female too dumb to realize the importance of law and order . . . or so sure of her own judgment she can't be bothered to follow the statutes? Or is she just a plain maverick by choice?

Yes, I know all those theories about her being "individualistic." But so was Capone. And no one's sending him violets. Then what? You tell.

Inauguration Stands Being Built; British Aid to Greece Difficult

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The presidential inauguration is more than two months off but already white-overalled carpenters are busy erecting stands and seats on Capitol Plaza. Reason for this unusual haste is—the defense program.

"If we waited much longer," explained David Lynn, veteran Capitol architect, "we wouldn't be able to get any lumber. The erection of the great camps for the selective service trainees has caused a shortage in the lumber market. The government is buying up all the good lumber it can get for the cantonments."

The lumber shortage also will affect the seating capacity. There will be room for only 12,500 spectators—2,000 less than in 1937. Congress appropriated the same amount of money as four years ago, but with increased material and lumber costs the $35,000 isn't going as far.

British Dilemma.

DIPLOMATS are still puzzled why the Italians invaded Greece at the time they did. In fact, rumors are recurrent that there has been a certain cooling off between Rome and Berlin, and that Mussolini barged into Greece without telling his Axis partner.

Whether this rumor is true nobody can yet tell, for the simple reason that only about four men participate in the Mussolini-Hitler conversations. But lending some credence to it is the fact that the Italians have made little headway, and seem to be relatively unprepared.

Real truth, according to intelligence reports received here, is that the Italian army has not the slightest enthusiasm for its job. Reports continue that the Italian people also don't like the role of Balkan conquest which has been cut out for them.

Meanwhile, no matter what may be the real situation between Hitler and Mussolini, it remains a fact that the British face a tough proposition in giving any real help to Greece. (So far they have not landed more than two divisions.)

One look at the map of the Mediterranean shows what the British are up against. They have three war arenas which they must protect, and only a limited number of men and ships in the Mediterranean. The three areas are: (1) Egypt; (2) Greece; and (3) Gibraltar.

Caught In Trap.

IN EGYPT, the British army of about 125,000 men faces an Italian army of 200,000 men. This has been sufficient so far to keep the Italians at bay. But now the British face a new menace. For the talks between Hitler and Marshal Petain contemplate the use of French Syria against them. In Syria are about 100,000 French Arab troops which might be sent down through Palestine to take Suez.

In other words, the British might be caught between the pincers of Graziani's army on one side in Egypt, and the French Syrian army on the other side. This might make the problem of protecting Suez desperate. And that is why the British can't send many troops to help Greece.

Another reason why they can't give further help to Greece is their fear that the attack on Greece is a feint to get all of Britain's Mediterranean fleet concentrated in the east. Then Germany would attack Gibraltar in the west. This, of course, would mean perfect teamwork between the two dictators; and it may be that they put out the rumor of a rift to catch the British off-guard. They have been known to do things like that.

Meanwhile, the Germans continue to pour troops into Rumania. They are not only re-training the Rumanian army under Nazi strategy, but they are also bringing in tons of German munitions. So it looks as if Hitler would put the squeeze on Greece from the Bulgarian side when the time comes. That time may not come for a while, because Hitler has shown that he seldom moves until he is fully prepared.

With the Italian on one side, and the Germans on the other, probably not even 100 per cent support from the British could save Greece.

Conscientious Objectors.

THE War Department is finding that bona fide conscientious objectors actually are ready to put themselves in as great physical danger as soldiers.

Quakers, Mennonites, Seventh Day Adventists, and other groups opposed to war on conscientious grounds, have told Selective Service officials they won't bear a gun against their fellow men, but they have no hesitation in taking jobs at the front where the hazard is high.

Quakers, Mennonites, and Amish will engage in building field fortifications which put them squarely in the line of attack. Seventh Day Adventists are preparing a medical corps of cadets who will give first aid on the field of battle.

For all such persons of sincere principles, the Selective Service is planning jobs which cannot contribute to killing, but can contribute to defense or to saving lives. The only sect which might come in for trouble is "Jehovah's Witnesses," whose refusal to salute the flag makes it hard to handle them in any army activity.

Conscientious objection is no ground, however, for refusing to register. And objectors will serve their full year of training, like men in the regular fighting forces.

19-Hour Day.

BETWEEN the fire and the fire-water, General George Marshall, U. S. chief of staff, had a busy day.

When fire broke out in the Munitions building, Marshall was on hand at four in the morning. He had a press conference at six, went home for breakfast, was back at seven thirty.

He worked through the morning, lunched with Latin American officers, worked through the afternoon, then attended a cocktail party at the Army War College.

That would have provided enough fire-water for Marshall for one day, but he had more social duties. He went to the Argentine embassy for dinner, drank a toast to the Argentine General Mohr, and went home at eleven—nineteen hours after he got out of bed.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of the sure ways of seeing a first class Broadway show free is to catch it in its rehearsal stages. This is easy, as rehearsals go on all the time. They take place in empty halls and untenanted theaters. Actors and directors move around in street clothes and if you can get into the theater without the doorman throwing you out, no one will say anything to you.

Watching the better known actors and actresses rehearse informally is novel entertainment. Some of them, not many but some, still cling to the "grand dame" manner. Others are just Joe and Bill and can-you-give-me-a-light-for-my-cigaret fellows.

You get a good line on people by watching them rehearse. World famous actors take sharp-voiced direction from little known directors without complaining. If the director didn't know his business, he wouldn't be there. And most theater people need direction. Few indeed merit the compliment of being known as "instinctive." An "instinctive" actress is one who instinctively does everything right. But far the majority, without direction, would "instinctively" do things wrong.

I LIKE to sit in on any rehearsal where Irving Berlin is. No rookie could be more enthusiastic. He is everywhere at once with undiminished pep. When he explains the accent he wants on one of his songs, he plays it and sings the lyrics. He has no voice—it is a half-cracked croak and a whisper. But he sings as heartily as a cock crowing for sunrise.

Noel Coward is a tireless worker. He has unlimited patience. He will re-enact one scene a dozen times, in a dozen ways, for a director. "We have to get this thing right," he says. "I wrote it but you tell me how to act it."

Katharine Cornell has to be watched during rehearsals. She will work until she falls if they let her. She thinks her husband, Guthrie McClintic, is the best director on earth. He directs all her plays.

MUSICAL shows and dramas have entirely different rehearsal formulas. Take the Ed Wynn show as an example. Wynn and his "name" performers rehearsed in one place. The dancers worked at the same time but in another building a half mile away. The chorus also had different rehearsal halls and hours. After each "group" mastered its foolery, the parts were assembled into a whole.

But drama is different. For a few days the cast sits around and reads its lines. Then they go through their paces on the stage. Some scenes may come "instinctively." Others may require weeks of correction. It is a back-breaking and sometimes heart-breaking experience. Rehearsals may last only a few hours, and again they may take up most of the night. Once you're into a rehearsal it is impossible to tell just how much, or little a play has. The shrewdest observers on earth are inable to tell. The answer can come only after the finished product is unveiled before a full, live audience.

ROOKWOOD POTTERY, made in Cincinnati since 1880, has been praised by critics the world over. The idea of this fine art pottery grew out of a fad for china painting.

An old schoolhouse was fitted with a small kiln and presented to Maria Longworth Nichols by her father, Joseph Longworth. The first kiln was drawn in November 1880. At first Rookwood pottery was an expensive luxury but it began to assume a commercial aspect when W. W. Taylor began directing operations in 1883.

Soon the plant was moved from the little schoolhouse to Mount Adams where it became self-supporting and provided employment for numerous artists as well as workers.

A Farmer's Diary

A Rainy Day

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

VERY EARLY this morning the sky was heavily dark. We were at breakfast when the rain began. The western window was misted with tiny windblown drops. All day it drizzled. Fog hung along the creek. The ridges were veiled in mist, shortening the view. We seemed shut into the confines of our own small acreage—all else obscure.

Our insignificant little house became the epitome of warmth and comfort, the center of a little world of its own. No radio, no telephone, no R. F. D.—we had only the orange school bus looming out of the fog, and departing again to the school behind the ridge, whose distant bell we faintly heard above the rush of the wind through barren trees.

I hunted rubbers and a forlorn old coat and went to the barn to see about the stock. A few hens, huddled beneath the overshoot, came running to meet me. I found the better half of the flock scratching and clucking on the big barn floor. In this sheltered place, between two high mows of straw, they were thoroughly enjoying themselves. I threw their grain into the litter and bade them hunt it.

Upon the lawn the brown goat and the white one played in the rain—jumping straight up on their hind feet with heads cocked on one side, like candidates for a comic strip Custard, the yellow kitten, played about my feet and begged for milk from the foaming pail. I fed her and watched her drink, her pink tongue lapping up the foam. The mild-eyed cow watched with slathering mouth, above her tub of feed.

It was no day to hurry. Upon the roof of the barn the rain was beating a sharp tattoo. I stood in the back barn door and watched the sky and smelled the mingling odors of rain and barn and animals. Earthy odors they are—and lovely and full of life.

It was a day for a woman to bake and sew—a day to put a warm dark outing cover upon a worn piece of bedding and tie it with bright red yarn. It was a day for a supper of savory stew, with a bit of raw sauer kraut and fresh gingerbread.

The rain kept on. Our homely little cottage, with the evening lamp in the window, seemed particularly pleasant and sheltering. The children, after a hearty romp, went off to bed in the loft beneath the roof—a place too low for an adult to stand erect, but cozy with its built-in bunks and near to the sound of the rain. From beneath the eaves, a cricket started his nightly concert and bedtime lullaby.

Board Studies Priority for 12,000 British Planes

DECIDES UPON SPEEDY ACTION ON WAR ORDERS

Speculation on Kennedy as Defense Commission Chairman Starts.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The national defense commission's war priorities board was expected to issue a formal statement today setting forth the nature of the priority to be given the British government's order for 12,000 more American planes.

The administration's determination to give more aid to Britain seemed evident after yesterday's two-hour meeting of the priorities board which had been called into session immediately after President Roosevelt conferred with members of the defense commission.

William S. Knudsen, defense commission production chief, acknowledged that the board had before it Mr. Roosevelt's recent request that it give sympathetic consideration to Britain's plea for more planes.

Informed sources said the board had decided in substance to fill the British orders as speedily as possible. A decision on details will await further discussion, it was said.

These sources asserted that the British orders would be worked in with American defense orders unler a plan to use to the full all existing facilities and those now under construction.

The White House meeting of defense officials reportedly dealt with a problem of meeting Britain's orders for 12,000 more planes and with the possibility of setting up subsidiary priorities boards for individual defense industries.

It was learned that the meeting also discussed the defense commission personnel, giving rise to speculation that Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London who had called on Mr. Roosevelt earlier, might be named its chairman.

The defense commission, which now has seven members, is purely advisory and reports to President Roosevelt. It has no chairman with administrative authority and this was criticized by the president's opponents during the recent campaign.

DRAFT BOARDS AWAIT QUOTAS

Richland County Expected To Get Orders Soon; Boards In Crawford Get Quota.

The three Richland county draft boards were faced today with the task of sending questionnaires to prospective draftees, classifying them, and selecting nine men for service within the next 10 days.

With their official quotas due today or Saturday from the state, the county boards were compiling their order lists today so they can begin mailing questionnaires to registrants high on the lists.

Crawford county had received its initial quota today. Two draft boards there were ordered to certify three names each.

After the lists are complete, showing the order in which men will be questioned and classified, the boards will mail the blanks and defer the men or classify them for immediate call. Registrants have five days in which to fill out the blanks and return them.

Clerks of the boards said it probably would require the rest of this week to make up the order lists. Questionnaires will then be sent to men highest on the lists.

The county must supply nine men on or soon after Nov. 19 under the first draft call. A large number will be called in December and still more at intervals until the national quota of 800,000 is filled next June.

The first draft call will take 996 from Ohio, an average of three men per board. The six boards with the largest registration will be asked to send four men each.

COURT ACTS

Stops Work on Home In Woodland Pending Suit Decision.

Five property owners in Woodland had obtained a temporary injunction in common pleas court today to halt construction of a house of less than the $8,000 valuation limit in the Woodland section.

Work on the house on a property owned by Charles C. and Hermine Getz and Fred Kinkle was ordered stopped until the case can be heard in common pleas court.

The temporary injunction was granted by Judge C. H. Huston in an action filed by Harry M. Lemley, L. H. Hamman, A. H. Moellenkamp, Weyman F. Norton and Zanta W. Shaffer, owners of property on Overlook and Andover roads.

They contend that the house being built on a lot near their property is valued at $5,500 and is being constructed in violation of the building restrictions in the community. Work on the house has been under way for several days.

The plaintiffs, represented by Atty. Marshall C. Moore, provided $200 bond covering the temporary injunction.

THREE OFFER MACHINE BIDS

Canton Firm Low Bidder on City's Purchase of New Bookkeeping Device.

City officials had under consideration today proposals submitted by three firms on a special bookkeeping machine to be purchased for the water department office.

Bids were opened yesterday by the board of control which is composed of Mayor William J. Locke and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton.

Crafton said the board planned to go over the proposals today and that announcement of the contract award would probably be made tomorrow.

Lowest of the bids was submitted by the Bourroughs Adding Machine company of Canton, which quoted a net price of $1,967, allowing the city $20 on a machine now in use in the office.

The bid was $81 lower than that of the closest competitor, the Charles Ritter company, which bid $2,048 02 net on a Sunstrand-Elliott-Fisher machine, allowing $96 98 on the old model.

The Mansfield Typewriter and Office Supply company, submitted a net bid of $2,175 on a Remington-Rand machine, allowing $200 for the old device.

Specifications call for delivery of the machine by Jan. 30.

City council authorized the purchase about six weeks ago and earmarked $2,500 to meet the expense.

MORE MISHAPS IN CITY STREETS

103 Traffic Crashes Shown In October Police Report, Despite Drives.

Despite an intensive campaign conducted by state highway patrolmen and police against speeding and reckless driving more accidents occurred on Mansfield streets during October than any recent month.

A report of activities of the police department filed with Service-safety Director C. M. Crafton showed that a total of 103 traffic crashes within the municipality, 15 more than were reported in September.

In only four of the cases, however, occupants were injured, while the balance of the mishaps resulted in damage to cars alone.

The report showed a total of 14 arrests during the month for speeding and reckless driving.

A total of 545 persons were cited for traffic violation, mostly infringement of the parking regulations. This is an increase over the September total.

CHAPTER XXXII

"The news is true." Philip said it simply, but he could not keep the satisfaction out of his voice, and the other man's look of resentment and tension deepened. Philip, who was again busy with his pipe, and was looking into the fire, seemed unconscious of it.

* * *

Tension. That was the word Jocelyn had been trying to find. Kent was trembling with suppressed emotion; his thin hands shook: his voice shook; his lips were shaking.

"I congratulate you both," he said.

"You're the first," Jocelyn told him. "We've told nobody, not even Philip's mother. But tomorrow everyone will know."

"And then it will be very soon?" he asked steadily.

"Very soon." Philip took his pipe out of his mouth to speak, put it back again.

"What would you call very soon?"

The faintest indication of a negative movement of the head from Philip warned Jocelyn, and she answered vaguely, "Well, we aren't sure."

"I had a letter from Lilian today,' Kent said. "I am going back to Portland tomorrow."

"Oh, I'm glad." She dared not let her tone express how glad. He was going away. The sky was clearing. "Lilian's family is there, isn't it?"

They were making talk; it was heavy going.

"Weren't you going to let me know that you were going to be married, Jocelyn?"

"You would have known if you read the papers on Saturday. But it's all been very sudden."

Kent looked down at his hands, the artist's sensitive thin hands, and cracked his knuckles as he said in a low voice, as if to himself:

"It's all very different from what I hoped. You know what I hoped, of course, Mr. Fordyce. Last fall, after Jocelyn left the office, I remember talking to you. I can't believe that she's changed to me so completely. It's awful, I suppose, saying this before you, but she'll not deny that we—we had planned it all very differently. It was to ask my wife to set me free. Jocelyn knew that. She—you must forgive me, I was at a business luncheon today and we were at the table until four, and my head feels muddled—but there was an understanding between us —"

"Ah, Kent, Kent!" Jocelyn interrupted the painful, difficult flow of words. "Don't talk that way. We were friends, we made each other very happy for a while. But last fall—you must remember this—you came into my office to say that it ought to stop. That it was distressing Lilian, that you were going away. Lilian had been miserable about it, Kent, and I was unhappy then, and now you are! We've all had a turn. Can't you believe that there was nothing in that affair that would prevent me from finding another man I loved, and that I wanted to marry?"

She leaned forward as she spoke. Philip did not speak.

"Hadn't I—hadn't I first right?" Kent asked hoarsely.

"You had no right. When a thing like that is over, Kent, it's over. There isn't any talk of rights. What—listen, Kent. What do you want me to do? How can I say I love you when I don't? You wouldn't want me to give up the happiness of my life just because you and I, a few years ago, thought we were in love with each other?"

"We were in love with each other. Jocelyn, I don't ask you to give up anything. Just to wait. To give me another chance. I thought I could give it up. I thought we'd worn it out. I knew I'd never have you until Lilian freed me, and she said she never would. I know I'm talking like a fool——"

He broke off suddenly; covered his face with his hands. There was a painful silence.

"I don't blame anyone who wants her," Philip said briefly.

"No, of course not! I'm talking like a fool," Kent said again. "I didn't mean to come down here tonight. But Covey came up to the studio about five o'clock, and we talked—I guess we talked until nearly nine. He kept trying to make me stop talking, and I kept sending downstairs for whisky and telling him—well, that's all of that."

He got to his feet and held out his hand to Jocelyn, who stood facing him, infinite distress in her eyes

"Good-bye," he said. "Good luck to you both! Anyone who gets her gets all the luck there ever was in the world."

"Write me how things go," she said, holding his hands.

He kissed her suddenly, lightly. "I will."

Philip walked with him to the door, came back, to put an arm about Jocelyn "Gone," he said. "Stop trembling and pull yourself together and forget him. He's lit up, for one thing, and he's the emotional sort that gets a kick out of scene like that That's the last we'll see of him. Stand back there, Jocelyn, get out of the way!"

The sound that is like no other in the world sliced through the air Jocelyn turned toward the door, saw the crazed reeling figure there, felt her knees buckle and her mouth taste brass. The bullet rang against the lamp just behind her, there was a crashing of broken glass that died away; the sharp quick report of another bullet, somewhere outside on the terrace, followed it.

There was an awful silence. She and Philip, panting, faced each other; then, she was in Philip's arms.

"You're all right?" he kept saying. Lorenz rushed in from the hall.

"He crashed the lamp, sir. He crashed the lamp," the butler said over and over. Philip put Jocelyn quickly aside and went out to the terrace, Lorenz somewhat hesitatingly following him. Jocelyn leaned against big, comforting Agnes.

Then Philip was back; he stood beside Jocelyn, gripping her hand. She had felt the bullet whiz close to her hair; she knew for whom it had been intended. But that hold on her icy fingers told her to keep still; she leaned against Philip, weak and dizzy.

"He wanted a loan. He was out of his head, I think. He'd been drinking," Philip said briefly. "Lorenz, get the police station. Jocelyn, you'd better go upstairs. You'll go with her, Agnes? I don't want my mother to hear of this until I tell her; remember, all of you!"

"Phil, is he there?" Jocelyn nodded her head toward the terrace.

"He's there," Philip said grimly. "But he won't bother us any more. That second bullet found its mark, poor fellow. He's dead."

Jocelyn did not see Philip after that. She went hurriedly upstairs with Agnes, to stand at her window and watch the big police ambulance come in. Philip came out into the moonlight, bareheaded, to stand there talking in low tones, and then they came into the house, presently to emerge carrying a covered form.

After the ambulance lumbered away, Philip and Lorenz went out toward the garages, evidently to go to the police station. Jocelyn, waited, ready to go out into the hall for a few whispered words with Philip when he returned Hour after hour she watched at the dark window, but he did not come. It was daybreak before she slept and she awakened late. Then, with awakening consciousness, awakening fear came, too. Had they arrested him? Had something gone wrong?

She did not ring for her breakfast, but at eleven o'clock left her room and timidly explored the upper floor Maids were busy with dusters and vacuum cleaner in Philip's big room. Mrs. Fordyce's room was in its usual perfect order.

Jocelyn went on downstairs. She felt that she would go mad if there were no word from Philip, but all the big rooms seemed empty. She was going on to the small dining room, when the silence was suddenly broken by that burst of words that end any keenly contested and tricky bridge hand.

"Yah! Take that and like it!" said Mrs Fordyce's voice triumphantly

"I will be damned!" a lazy, pleasant man's voice responded in a tone of amazed defeat. Jocelyn could not believe her ears, but it was Philip's voice.

A confused chorus followed.

"Bert, you didn't make it! My wonder woman! Doubled and redoubled. I don't believe it! Lend me something to cut my throat! . . . Don't talk of any more suicides right here, dear. Remember where you are. . . . Partner, when I saw that nine of diamonds I knew we were saved. What a hand! What on earth did you double on, Nita? . . . That wasn't enough, honey. . . . When I saw that nine. . . ."

Jocelyn, stupefied, went to that same door in which Kent had first appeared last night, and wondered whether she had dreamed the whole horrible experience. A card table had been set in the rich soft green shadow of the terrace, and around were grouped Mrs. Fordyce, Philip, Nita Royce, and a man she did not know. Philip was the first to see her, and jumped to his feet smiling.

"Jocelyn! Get a good sleep? Come over here and meet Sir Tommy Watts. Tommy, Miss Britton. Tommy arrived yesterday, Jocelyn and the Carters couldn't put him up because they're all torn up, and so Mother brought him home here."

"Hollywood papers please copy and all that," said Tommy, with his eyes upon Jocelyn.

"No, she belongs here," Philip said laughing. "And — I don't know that I've three friends I'd rather tell first," he added, as Jocelyn, her hand still in his, sat down beside him on a long bench, "she intends to take this whole place in hand sometime pretty soon. Mother's to stop drinking and smoking; Norma's to come home—"

"Oh, really?" Nita said rather faintly, in her most sophisticated tone. "I didn't know."

Tommy came over for laughing and affectionate good wishes Mrs. Fordyce said that she had known for weeks what was going on, and was perfectly delighted.

"Phil's much too nice to have every woman who asks him to supper put it in the paper the next day that they're engaged," she said.

"The papers say what they please," said Nita, who for some reason had turned red.

"Come over here and kiss me, Jocelyn," said Philip's mother. "Now you'll have that girl to raise and I wish you joy of her. Adore her, but she's as wild as a coyote. I suppose you heard the goings-on here last night, Miss Brit—Jocelyn? Crackpot who works in the same building as Phil's office comes in to borrow money and when he can't get it shoots himself. He knocked down a lamp, too. Yes, walks in on Phil with a gun. Mercy he didn't kill Phil."

She gathered the cards in groomed, ringed hands; shuffled.

"I think it's yours, Tommy. The worst of suicides is," said Mrs. Fordyce, "you can't arrest 'em. It's all over. Oh, you were down here, weren't you, Jocelyn? Your deal, Tommy. Agnes told me she went upstairs with you."

"Jocelyn was out on the terrace; we'd just said good night," Philip explained. "I'd promised to go over to Larry's for a 10 o'clock poker game. Poor Dunham didn't come to the door; Lorenz was right there. He walked up the far end of the terrace here and went in. I found him there and we talked, and Jocelyn had just come in when the shooting started."

"He must have been a good shot to miss you at that range," Nita said idly. She had been studying Jocelyn with half-closed insolent eyes, her mouth curved into a half-smile.

"He was crazy, of course. If I play another, Mother," Philip said, "I'll be late. I'm making a business lunch in town."

"Try to get someone, won't you, Jocelyn?" Mrs. Fordyce pleaded. "Try for Mrs. Sears."

CHILD WEDDING

High School Pupils, 16 and 14, Take Vows.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia.—(U.P.)—A romance that started two years ago when they played together with dolls and built doll houses; has culminated in marraige for Alfred "Sonny" Foster, 16, and his 14-year-old girl friend, Betty Jean.

It started when the girl's parents moved next door to the Andrew Foster home. Betty Jean liked dolls and "Sonny" was fond of building doll houses, so they became inseparable playmates.

Recently the Fosters moved out of the neighborhood and it seemed natural that Betty Jean should go with them.

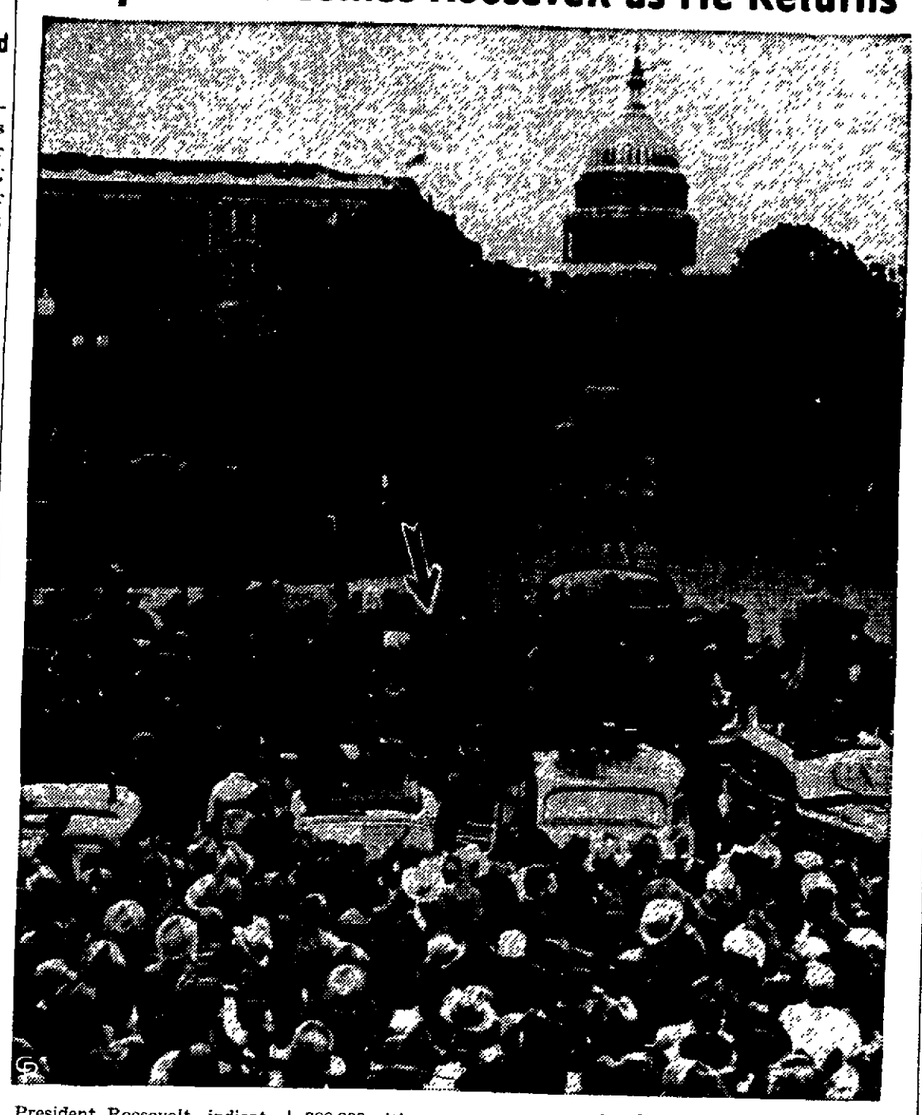
The boy and girl wanted to get married. Their parents consented and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. C. Shrout, pastor of the Central Nazarene church here.

The honeymoon was a month in Colorado visiting relatives.

DAUGHTER BORN

CRESTLINE—Mr. and Mrs Robert Sutter of north of Crestline, are the parents of a daughter born Thursday at Emergency hospital.

Capital Welcomes Roosevelt as He Returns



President Roosevelt, indicated by arrow, is pictured during the wild ovation that was accorded him by approximately 300,000 citizens as he returned to Washington from his home at Hyde Park, where he remained during election. Roosevelt returned to Washington as no other U. S. president had ever returned before—to serve a third term as the nation's chief executive.

PLANS MADE TO REBUILD CHAPEL

WATSON, Minn.—(U.P.)—Restoration of Lac Qui Parle chapel—first Protestant mission in Minnesota—will be undertaken next spring by the state division of parks.

The building was destroyed in the Indian uprising in 1862, Richard Sackett, supervisor of the historical records survey, asid.

Sackett said records left by the Rev. Stephen Riggs, founder of the mission, indicated the chapel had been built on a hill, with Indian women furnishing most of the labor. Bricks used in its construction were molded by hand and dried in the sun.

"The bell later acquired by the mission," Sackett said, "was the first church bell in the Minnesota territory."

THEATERS

War and Pulchritude.

A WOMAN war correspondent and an American adventurer in the Royal Air Force are the major figures in an exciting romance which Paramount put into a movie called "Arise My Love" and which opens a four-day engagement at the Ohio tomorrow. Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland head the cast. In the cast are Walter Abel, Dennis O'Keefe and Dick Purcell.

Deanna in Vienna.

Deanna Durbin gives her charms to "Spring Parade," her latest film which the Madison shows tomorrow. It is a story of young love, romance in Vienna, gorgeous uniforms, and the old order of things as they were before the war in Europe. Mischa Auer and Robert Cummings support the youthful star. Richard Arlen and Andy Devine in "The Leather-Pushers" is the second feature.

Streamlining River's End.

Women who diet in search of slenderness will find much to interest them in "Dr. Christian Meets the Women," being shown at the Park. A crack-pot dietician very nearly wrecks the feminine contingent of River's End with his slenderizing schemes and Dr. Christian (Jean Hersholt) comes to the rescue in this episode of a popular movie series.

Gambling Ship.

Exciting skirmishes between government officers and operators of a gambling ship provide the nucelous for "Gambling On The High Seas" which the Ritz is showing today and tomorrow. Wayne Morris and Jane Wyman, Gilbert Roland and John Litel are in the cast. Also shown is Tex Ritter in "Westbound Stage."

Villain Pursues Again.

Back in 1844 a morality drama was produced at the Boston Museum and 10 years later P. T. Barnum produced it on the stage. It was called "The Fallen Saved." This old melodrama comes to life again as "The Villain Still Pursued Her" and is presented at the Majestic. Lovely Anita Louise is the pursuee and Alan Mowbray the pursurer. Such oldsters as Richard Cromwell and Buster Keaton are in the cast. A Johnny Mack Brown Western is also on the bill.

HAYFEVER ENDS FOR CARPENTER

PAW PAW, Mich.—(U.P.)—State police have solved the mystery of why their radio operator got hayfever.

Since the Paw Paw's ultra-modern building was completed in 1936, the post has had five radio operators, and each has contracted the disease.

One theory advanced was the heat from the huge transmitter tubes caused hayfever. Carpenters partitioning the transmitter from the operator's room found the real cause of the operator's misfortune.

It was found that spun glass batting placed behind the perforated walls of the radio room in sound-proofing had disintegrated. As a result, the glass dust sifted through the perforated walls and, physicians say, irritated bronchial and nasal passages of the operators.

INTERNED MEN FORM SCHOOLS

Field Universities Being Organized In Switzerland For French, Poles.

(By United Press)

BERNE, Switzerland —Special field-universities are being created for about 500 students who were among the French and Polish soldiers crossing the border from France in June to be interned in Swiss camps

The universities opened the end of October, following a regrouping of the interned students to place them in camps where they can resume their studies. All students following one particular line of studies were placed in the same camp.

The faculty was recruited principally from the interned soldiers, but lecturers also will be supplied by the various Swiss universities and by the Federal Technical high school. Under present plans each camp will be "attached" to one of the Swiss universities. The sponsoring Swiss university for each camp will place its faculty and libraries at the disposal of the interned students

The students will be subject to military discipline under the direction of the interned professors

187 Workers File Industrial Injury Claims.

Two persons were fatally injured in Richland county industrial accidents in September while 187 workers filed injury claims with the Ohio Industrial commission, the commissions' monthly report showed today.

Twenty-four workers in the county lost more than a week's work as a result of their injuries, 20 lost seven days or less, and 141 were able to go back to work after receiving medical treatment. Total time lost by workers for the month was 13,234 days.

There were 79 fatal industrial accidents in Ohio, an increase over August. The Industrial commission report attributed the increase to a pick-up in industrial activities due to the national defense program.

Aid Child Who Reads Poorly

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Repeatedly in this column I have urged parents to read daily to the child from his early second year long past the time he enters school. I can think of no finer contribution to the child's pre-school and later education. It is excellent for reading readiness. How fine it is if it culminates in reading to one another in the family, even when the children are practically grown.

Yes, I know that reading experts occasionally find a poor reader in the third or fourth grade whose parents still read to him. Indeed, I have heard from a few of such parents through this column. Some years ago I studied and worked with some such cases following them through several months until they were able to make rapid reading gains. But I did not, as do most reading experts, advise the parents to quit reading to this poor reader.

Continue to read aloud to him but pause occasionaly to show him the word or phrase he hears you say. In the midst of a new brief story he likes find occasion to quit reading, suddenly, and don't resume too soon. Impatient, he might choose to dig it out alone.

As further help to the poor reader—

"Have him dictate stories of his own to you to type and read to him. Comics which are really funny and not fearful are also good for teaching reading at home . . .

Urge to Read

"About the greatest possible urge to learn to read is the wish to be able to read to a younger child, especially to a baby brother or sister; therefore, about the best way to help a poor reader is to induce him to read to a baby or very young child. Naturally then he will choose to read easy materials, the very kind this poor reader ought to practice on. Have him read only from what he can read easily, even if it must be no harder than a primer . . .

"In case the child in the upper grades or high school has trouble preparing his home assignments in English, history, science and the like, read aloud to him these assignments from his texts and help him put each paragraph briefly into his own words. Then help him also find a few minutes each day to practice reading at materials far easier. The high school student might be induced to read aloud to himself daily from such sources as Franklin's Autobiography, Robinson Crusoe, the Bible."

I have been quoting a bit from my "Home Helps for Poor Readers." You may have the whole of it without cost, by writing me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-eddressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I WAS on my knees before a flower bed in my beloved "picture garden" at the farm, with Junior and Roderick on either side watching my every movement, when the familiar motor horn blared.

"That's Daddy!" Junior shricked and Roderick added an explosively joyous "Uncle Dicky" as the two boys poised for flight, forgetting the "flats" of small pots filled with tiny plants in which they had been so feverishly interested.

But before they ran to meet Dicky, they both demanded, "Aren't you coming, too?"

"No, I mustn't leave these plants. Run along now, kiss daddy, and tell him I'm out here in the garden," I told them with only a soupcon of mendacity, for sunset was fast approaching, and I wanted to get my special pets in the ground without further delay. But I knew that was not my real reason I had not seen my husband for nearly a week, and I did not want my first reunion with him witnessed by even the boys.

It is a fetish with both of us lately, this keeping our greeting and parting kisses away from eyes not exactly alien, but certainly curious. It is something which most brides and grooms stress, but which older married people forget, or regard as foolish. But it is a part of a renewed honeymoon, a midsummer flowering of happiness in each other which has come to us this last winter and spring following the horrible death of Jack Lester after the scotching of his plot to kill my father and Noel and carry Mary off, and to blackmail Dicky into betraying my father into his hands.

My husband and I had not "drifted apart," but our diversity of interests, his work as an artist and mine as a playwright, had kept us from getting the entire happiness out of our marriage to which every pair of married lovers is entitled.

Because of this we are reveling in the quietness and serenity with which our lives have been invested the past few months.

I worked busily with my trowel, but I was agog with the prospect of seeing my husband as well as with wonder of what could have brought him home thus unexpectedly, and when I heard his footsteps on the flagged terrace above the garden, I dropped the trowel, drew off my garden gloves, and stood up, thrilling at his nearness, as the bride of a week might do.

As he saw me, he took the terrace in two giant strides, the grassy plot between us in three more, and caught me to him in a close embrace.

"Clad to see me, Sweet?" he asked.

"You know that," I returned demurely. "But I am afraid I'm a bit grubby."

"Not you," he said with a compliment in his voice. "But I'd love it if you were. In fact I love every bit of this gardening craze of yours. I didn't use to fall for it so hard. Remember?"

"Yes," I said with a mischievous upward smile at him. "I remember your telling me each spring that I went crazy—well—crazier than usual—twice a year, at Christmas time, and when the seed catalogues began to arrive in the spring."

"Why throw that up to me now, when I'm singing so different a tune?" he asked with a comradely grin. "But it isn't the garden, as you very well know. I don't know a petunia from a dahlia. It's just that I'm so blasted glad to have you at home again. And yet I've been so puffed up with pride at having a successful playwright for a wife, that my chest measure, also my hat size, have grown a foot or two."

I kissed him impetuously, for I am still amazed at the way in which Dicky has taken my "rise to fame," as Lillian puts it.

For a few weeks following the production, life had been most hectic for Mary and me. I surmised it still was for Mary, for of course she had to be at the theater every night, and she and Noel were living in luxurous quarters at the Lansfield, while Philip Veritzen, after a brief honeymoon with his queenly wife, had domiciled her in a big, beautiful house in the city overlooking the river. Olina, a subdued and tractable Olina, apparently absorbed in her success as a harpist in my play, was with his, and life seemed roseate for all of them.

"Is there anybody else that can do this stunt just now, or can they wait till tomorrow?"

"I don't want them to wait," I said, a bit uncertainly. Then, with sudden resolution, for something in his tone told me he needed me for something, I turned and called to Junior and Roderick who were racing toward us.

"Boys' Please get Jim and ask him to come here at once."

"Okay!" they called back, and raced off again, while Dicky grinned at me.

"I flagged them when I came in and sent them off on a fool's errand so as to have a minute alone with you."

"I guessed as much," I told him demurely.

"Well! I don't have so many," he said defensively. "Are you sure Jim can do this stunt all right?" I know how—fastidious—you are about your plants."

"You mean 'fussy' don't you?" I asked mischievously. "Yes, Jim knows how and he'll be patient with the boys who are crazy to help."

"That's fine all around," he said. "For I need you a little while thank Heaven I don't have to have your help for anything special, but Lil's in a dither, something that she can't talk to you about by telephone, and she has an order on hand that's got to be finished in the next few days. So when she got this letter, she rushed over to me, and wanted to know if I could possibly bring it out to you and have you see what you make of it."

I put my hands on his shoulders and shook him slightly.

"Will you go slowly?" I demanded. "What letter do you mean, and what is this all about, anyway?"

"It's about Marion, of course. I can't imagine Lillian getting all steamed up about anybody else. And as the letter is from Helena Brixton, I imagine Ronald is involved as well, or perhaps it's Carolyn. She's Marion's roommate at Weirhampton the same as she was at Hackettstown, isn't she?"

"Yes, she is," I answered slowly, my own brain in a "dither," my heart suddenly heavy with foreboding.

"Did you want me, Ma'am?"

Jim's voice brought me back from the realm of speculation.

"Yes, I did," I answered, "and if you can I wish you'd let the boys help you in planting them."

His eyes met mine in stolid but humorous comprehension of the "help" the boys would give him, but his voice was even.

"I'll be glad to have 'em," he said, and leaving the delighted boys with him, Dicky guided my steps toward the little outdoor studio he had built for me several seasons ebfore.

"I fancy this is the safest place," he said. "Mother hasn't discovered I'm here, has she?"

"If she had she'd have been out here before this," I told him smiling.

"Yes, I know" he said fondly, for he loves his aged mother dearly. "But I do want to get this off my mind first"

We went into the bungalow, and sat down before the "fagot fire" which Jim had built for me but a few minutes before. Then Dicky took a bulky letter from his pocket and handed it to me.

"I haven't read it," he said "Lil wanted me to, but I'd rather get your slant on it first."

I took the letter gingerly, for I am not "overly fond" as my mother-in-law would put it, of Helena Brixton, who was a girlhood friend of Lillian's. And I found myself mentally bracing myself for some unpleasant revelation.

I needed bracing. I told myself when I read the first paragraph of the letter. While somewhat incoherent, Helena had blurted out her grief and resentment at once.

"Dear Lil:—" she had written. "Whatever has happened? Are you responsible for what Marion is doing? I am afraid for my boy's reason and his life. Ronald has lost fifteen pounds in the last month, and he goes around like a person who has lost his mind. And it is all Marion's fault"

"The Authority on Authorities"

MARGIN OF SAFETY

IF A MINIMUM rebid of the responder's suit is treated by the side as a weakness-shower and an effort to sign off, unless the original bidder has unusual strength, then he can afford to bid five-card and six-card suits in a much weaker hand than when such a bid shows substantial values. When this is being done, however, the original caller must act gingerly and not jump at once to game in the responder's suit unless he is prepared to find his partner with an irreducible minimum. Unless his own holding is quite strong, he should raise the bid just one level in order to find out whether his partner had a near minimum or a near-maximum.

Such a bid as North's here could show a hand with any number of playing tricks from slightly over three up to six or so. South had no way of knowing whether it was in the upper or lower register. A kibitzer behind him criticized him for not bidding 4-Hearts as soon as he heard the suit mentioned, but he knew better. He knew how weak his partner's hand might be, and he provided a margin of safety by raising to only three.

If North's hand had been about half a trick stronger, he would have gone to 4-Hearts. But as it was, he held only about three and a half probable playing tricks. Unless he had about four and a plus value, his correct action was to pass.

As the cards lay, there was no earthly chance to avoid the loss of two tricks in each of the black suits. So South was vindicated.

This definite advance upon high goals may be indicated by promotion, preferment, and other manifestations of confidence and esteem from employers, superiors and others in influential positions.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of excellent opportunities for putting over their cherished programs, mainly through industry, application and sound objectives which arrest the attention of employers, superiors or others in power, who are disposed to offer signs of appreciation, preferment, favors and promotions.

A child born on this day may have excellent mentality, force and energy with many sterling qualities to assist it with those of prestige and influence. Hard work, sound ideas and enterprise assure it enduring success in life.

Because of the cutting off of all European sources of fine glassware (for years we have gotten our best crystal from Sweden and Czechoslovakia), the art of glass blowing is now undergoing a great impetus in this country. The fine modern American glassware being produced, which is made from American materials and by American craftsmen, ranks in quality and beauty with any ever made.

Leaders Indicate Labor Peace Between CIO and AFL

BOTH UNIONS CONVENE LATE IN NOVEMBER

President's Request For New Negotiations Expected By Pittsburghers.

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH—A growing belief that peace between labor's warring factions may be an immediate result of the recent election was evident today in high circles here of both the CIO and A. F. of L.

It was based primarily upon the increasing conviction that CIO Chieftain John L. Lewis will make good his pre-election promise to step aside in event President Roosevelt won a third term.

Leaders attending last night's regular meeting of the CIO steel city industrial union council and the AFL central labor union said they expected President Roosevelt to request a reconvening of the peace negotiating committees of the rival organizations. Saying such a program "undoubtedly is in the cards," Leo Abernathy, international president of the Bill Posters and Distributors union added he thought such a call would come shortly after the close or possibly during the imminent conventions of the two groups.

The CIO meets November 18 in Atlantic City and the AFL at New Orleans on November 19.

Privately leaders in both factions say they regard Lewis as the chief stumbling block to peace in the house of labor.

Throughout his career, they say, the heavy-browed Welshman has been an uncompromising, bulldog battler where the issue involved a principle so dear to his heart as that of the vertical or industrial union for mass production industries versus the AFL craft setup.

Peace parleys between the AFL and CIO broke down two years ago. The AFL refused Lewis' suggestion that all CIO unions be admitted to the AFL. President Green of the AFL and his group wanted jurisdictional disputes settled first. Each claims about 4,000,000 members.

START PROJECT

Girl Scouts To Begin Sewing For War-Stricken Europe.

Girl Scouts of Mansfield will start on their Red Cross sewing project early next week, a project in which they will make 250 woolen skirts for girls in war-stricken Europe.

Troop leaders met yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce to receive material for the skirts which had already been cut from the yardage furnished the local chapter of Red Cross by the government.

Mrs. M. L. Smith of the Red Cross production committee attended the meeting and gave leaders instructions on how the skirts are to be made. Every garment must meet national Red Cross standards.

The material will be given Girl Scouts who will do the work under the supervision of their troop leaders. They have agreed to have the entire project completed by Jan. 1.

Early Adjournment of Congress Planned

If we take England's war to heart, England shows as much interest in our national elections. A Mansfield stayer-up-late tuned in on a London broadcast at 3 a. m. Thursday morning on short wave and heard a commentator from London talking to the English people about the elections in the United States. He said he was receiving questions on how the various states went in the election and that English people were almost as eager to know which candidate took New York as were the people over here. Everyone in England, he said, was wildly elated at the Roosevelt victory:

Austin, statistician at the Richland county relief office, has been complimented on her preparation of a concise and detailed monthly relief report which is filed with city, county and state officials. According to rumors circulating at the Mansfield sub-station of the highway patrol this morning, Corp. C. F. Strayer, officer in charge, and one of Mansfield's most enthusiastic duck hunters, has apparently given up ducks in favor of the lowly rat. Last night while Strayer was in the basement of his home he discovered one of the huge rodents cavorting merrily about the floor. Strayer immediately went into action and gave chace, but the rat eluded him. The corporal's next step was to telephone all his friends in search of a rat trap. Late last night he was still looking, fellow patrolmen said this morning.

URGES PUBLIC SALE OF BONDS

Economist Suggests Patriotic Defense Financing on Liberty Bond Plan.

(By United Press)

CINCINNATI—Dr. Paul F. Cadman, economist for the American Bankers' association, told the Ohio Chamber of Commerce convention last night that to increase the national debt limit to $65,000,000,000 would be a "grave" undertaking.

Reports from Washington quoted Secretary of the Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau as suggesting the possible increase in the debt limit. Cadman said that if the debt limit is to be raised to that fgure "the American public should know exactly what this means."

"If more federal government bonds are to be sold to the banks, with or without pressure, they will add to the dangers of inflation and thereby invite the arbitrary controls which should not be imposed except as a last resort," he said.

"On the other hand, if these bonds can be sold to the public through a nonpolitical and patriotic appeal such as was employed in the sale of Liberty bonds, the danger would be considerably lessened. Furthermore the American public has the right to ask whether this proposed new financing means that private financial agencies will not be employed in the defense program."

Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, told the session that the nation was "not yet properly geared up for war production," but that the navy was "progressing satisfactorily in efforts to obtain a well-rounded, modern fleet."

HEAVY SEAS HAMPER EFFORTS TO FLOAT GROUNDED LAKE BOAT

MUNISING, Mich.—(U.P.)—Heavy seas today hampered efforts to re-float the ore freighter Sparta, aground since Tuesday night on the picture rocks in Lake Superior, 14 miles northwest of Munising.

Fresh northwest winds slowed attempts to maneuver the big wrecking tug Favorite close enough to the Sparta to put a line aboard. The Favorite arrived at the scene before dawn after a run from Sault Ste. Marie.

A skeleton crew under Capt. Chester Danielson of Cleveland was aboard the distressed ship to keep up steam and aid in the efforts to pull the 386-foot boat off the rocky shore.

The Sparta, operated by G. A. Tomlinson, was driven ashore during a 65-mile-an-hour wind and snowstorm while bound light for Duluth for an ore cargo.

Capt. Danielson ran into the storm about 12 hours after leaving the Soo. He was trying to make shelter behind Grand Island, off Munising, when his ship was whipped onto the rocks.

Crew members burned oil-soaked distress flares but were unable to attract attention of passing ships. Yesterday, Captain Danielson and four crew members put off in a small boat and reached the Sand Point coast guard station to report the vessel's plight.

The 31 members of the crew were taken off the ship during the afternoon. Part of the crew returned last night to await attempts by the Favorite and two coast guard cutters, the Rush and Ossippee, to free the Sparta.

Reports from Munising said the Sparta was listing to port and that her engine room was partly flooded. The boat is owned by the National Steamship company, Cleveland.

The 600-foot freighter Merton F. Farr, another Tomlinson fleet vessel was blown aground on Strawberry Island in the Niagara river yesterday. Refloated two hours later by tugs, she was taken to a Buffalo drydock for inspection

FEW CHANGES

Election Board Continues With Official Count.

It appeared today that election tabulators in Richland county turned in an accurate job Tuesday night although they counted more votes than ever before in the history of the county.

With the official count nearing completion at the board of elections office, clerks today said only minor errors of from one to 10 votes per candidate have been found.

With a difference of 600 votes separating the candidates in the two close races—for probate judge and state representative — there was little chance that the result will be changed by the official count.

SPEAKER SEES NO REASON TO DEBATE ISSUES

Wants Newly-Elected Solons To Tackle Debt, Taxes In January Session.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON— Congressional leaders hoped today to adjourn congress next Friday without taking up Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau's plan to raise the national debt limit to $65,000,000,000 and tax new issues of new exempt government securities.

Speaker Sam Rayburn said those issues had been "lying around for a long time" and saw no reason to keep congress here to debate them. He wanted the newly-elected congress, which convenes in January, to deal with them.

Treasury officials said the $4,000,000,000 of borrowing authority already granted for defense remains, and the six-week interim until the next congress could be used in drafting proposed legislation.

Morgenthau, with an eye on the fact that the national debt now rapidly approaches its present $45,000,000,000 limit, proposed the increase yesterday, saying: "We have only just started to re-arm." Treasury officials indicated their belief that the $4,000,000,000 increase in the debt authorized for defense purposes only, would be exhausted before the end of this fiscal year. On Oct. 31 only $567,000,000 of the $450,000,000,000 borrowing authority for general purposes, remained.

Congressional leaders agreed that action on the treasury proposals should go over to the congress when the house ways and means committee probably will start work on a new tax bill. An increase in the debt limit and taxation of exempt securities could be considered at the same time, they said.

Morgenthau said he intended to ask congress to withdraw the defense restriction on the $4,000,000,000 increase of the national debt already authorized so that it may be used for general expenditures as well as for defense. This, he said, would permit a savings through the lower interest rates on longer-term securities. Under present restrictions, defense bonds must be limited to five years.

Morgenthau foresaw the possibility of a national debt of $65,000,000,000 by June 30, 1942.

CLINTON, N. C.—(AP)—When a relief applicant gave the names of her children as "Pizlam Civ" and "Vereeley," welfare authorities inquired where she got the names. From the Bible, she replied.

Tales From Times Square.

Betty Allen, the in-and-out heroine of "DuBarry," was sitting in the Hurricane the other evening when a tray-laden waiter approached a college boy sitting forlornly amidst a party of four.

"Excuse me, sir," said the waiter, "did you ask for the Zombie?"

"No," sighed the distrait youth, "it was a blind date!"

No one knows quite how it started, but talk at the Versailles the other evening drifted around to the subject of evening dresses. Ed Wynn (who composes his own frocks in "Boys and Girls Together") started to describe a very daring gown he had just seen, but somehow he couldn't find the proper words.

"All I can say is," he began, "it had only a yard of black velvet —and about three yards of complexion!"

* * *

Playwright S. J. Perelman dropped into the Algonquin the other night to tell Greta Keller about life in Bucks county, Pa., where he has a home.

"Things are pretty primitive down there," he confided. "Why, my telephone is still on a party wire."

"Do your neighbors ever listen in?" asked Greta.

"Do they?" sighed S. J. "At the end of the month, instead of the phone bill, the company sends me my Crossley rating!"

Henny Youngman was telling the night watch in Reuben's about the dog, a mongrel breed, who was having a happy time frolicking around the streets, rolling in the dirt and scampering with his canine playmates. Until one unhappy day a catcher from the ASPCA corraled the puppy and locked him up in the pound, the mongrel kept moaning over and over again, "It shoudn't. It shouldn't."

After a time the dog catcher got annoyed. "What shouldn't? he demanded.

"It shouldn't happen to a man!" the dog cried.

Woody Herman, the hand leader, was telling the boys at Lindy's the tale of the Warner Brothers press agent who witnessed Notre Dame's walloping of Carnegie Tech.

After the seventh Irish touchdown in a row, the p. a. could stand it no longer. He ran out onto the field and cornered the Notre Dame team during a time-out.

"Take it easy, boys," he pleaded. "These guys go to the movies, too!"

Which reminded an alumnus of the old legend of the time Rockne was invited to attend a practice session of a semi-pro eleven by a friend who was managing the team. The session revealed that the team was woefully poor at pass-receiving.

"We've got a great pass-thrower," the coach apologized to Knute, "but the ends just don't hold onto them. Have you got any suggestions?"

"Sure," drawled Rockne, "paste a picture of Garbo on the ball!"

Cynthia Cavanaugh, the fabulous showgirl, who is known to the mob as "The Duchess," was doing a rhumba with her new boy friend at Armando's a few midnights ago, and it was quite a sight to see.

"Look at those two dance," pointed Dick Gasparre, the maestro. "He's holding her as tight as if she were a nickel and he were Jack Benny!"

A chorine helloed Martha Raye at the Stork club with a bright smile on her face. "I've got a rich new beau," she bubbled, "and I feel wonderful . . . How do I look?"

"I'd say," replied Martha, "you're in the mink of condition!"

In the Coq Rouge only the other midnight, Sammy Kaye was making his listeners giggle with the story of the newly-admitted prisoner in Sing Sing who was ushered into the warden's office for the usual admonishing lecture.

The warden was warming into his stock discourse when he realized that the convict was echoing the same spiel, word for word —but two sentences ahead of him at that.

"How do you know what I'm going to say?" the warden cried in amazement. "Are you a mind-reader?"

"Oh, no," smirked the convict. "I used to be a script writer at Warner Brothers!"

There had to be an Election day giggle, of course. That came when a friend stopped Paul Hartman in the Gripsholm Tuesday night and asked him how his wife Grace was voting. "Why, she'll vote the way I do," was the prompt reply.

"And how are you voting?" the dancer was asked.

"Gosh, I dunno," Paul replied, "I haven't asked her yet!"

Ella Fitzgerald, the swing singer, is getting smiles with her legend of the pigeon who was flying madly for home the other evening. A friendly bird stopped him to ask why all the rush.

"I've been late for dinner with my wife three nights this week," cooed the worried pigeon. "If I'm late tonight—I'm a dead human!"

(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

Trains Crash Near 'Doodlebug' Wreck Scene on Pennsy

AKRON — (U.P.) — Pennsylvania railroad officials investigated today a freight train collision within a mile of the scene where the "Doodlebug" shuttle wreck killed 43 persons last July 31.

A double-header 80-car freight train crashed into the rear of a standing train. The leading locomotive turned over and the second was derailed. The caboose and a car of the other freight train were thrown off the tracks.

No one was injured.

P. N. Skinner, fireman, said he saw a warning flare behind the standing train as they came around a curve but too late to stop their heavy load of ore. The first train had stopped to take on water.

Both were bound from Cleveland.

Coach Bob De Haven's ninth grade eleven closed its 1940 season sporting a record of not having been scored on in any of its contests.

After Ed Symsick, fullback, scored Simpson's first touchdown early in the first period, the Bulldogs went on without any difficulty to score five more touchdowns against the Butler eleven and account for five extra points.

Simpson's other touchdowns were scored by Charlie Hamman, Carl Schafer, Jasper Browning, and Parry, halfback who scored twice.

Toledo Waite Officials Deny Football Charges

TOLEDO —(AP)— Officials of Toledo Waite high school, admitted target of an inquiry into scholastic atheltics in Toledo, today denied being involved in any irregularities and welcomed the investigation.

The probe was authorized by the Toledo board of education at the request of Eldon Young, board member, who declared that Waite in particular is the "subject of rumors relating to alleged unethical conduct of athletic affairs."

* * *

Young did not amplify the "rumors" but his motion proposing the inquiry directed that they be studied to "correct the situation if true or to vindicate Waite officials if false."

Edward E. Evans, school board president, declared that the inquiry would not single out any one school but would include the athletic systems of all Toledo schools.

Philip K. Conser, Waite principal, asserted:

"We are not guilty of any infractions and those making such statements should be prosecuted."

Kenneth (Jack) Mollenkopf, Waite football coach, declared, "I want this investigation and I want it now."

Officials of other Toledo high schools also expressed confidence that the probe would disclose nothing derogatory.

The school board forced Waite to cancel a scheduled game with a Portland, Ore., high school Nov. 30 so that it could play a charity game here on that date.

Automotive Team Set To Register 3rd Win

Supplies' Attack Working Smoothly; Bantams Out to Turn Back Akron Outfit.

THE discovery that their running attack can function with splendid results, the Automotive Supplies had new life today as they went through a snappy drill session to make ready to entertain the Lorain Police Barracks club in the second half of a football doubleheader at the Fairground Sunday.

In the opening part of the twin attraction, the strong Mansfield Eagles Lodge Bantamweights will play the Akron Local No. 5 team. The first tussle will get under way at 1:30 p. m.

* * *

In five games the semi-pros failed to find the spark to set their running attack into full speed and then suddenly it began functioning and the club has chalked up two successive triumphs.

The Mansfield lost to the Akron Awnings, Canton Bulldogs, Minerva and the McKeesport, Pa., Olympics and tied Carrollton before winning.

Coach Earl McMullen saw his club start clicking when it beat the Sandusky Maroons, 14 to 6, and last week was impressed when the team played their initial home game by walloping the Columbus Avondale Athletic club combine, 26 to 8, after trailing, 6 to 0, in the first quarter.

Spearheads of the Supplies' attack are Kenny Lockhart and Al Schwaner. Lockhart, former Madison high gridder, sparked the club to its first two touchdowns against Columbus, while Al Schwaner, a member of the team for several years, scored twice on power plays.

Lockhart cut the Columbus line to shreds as he constantly ripped off huge gains. His worker brought praise from the Capital City eleven.

Mentor Hank Richards' bantamweight aggregation is rated by experts as one of the best in the state. Composed of players not exceeding 135 pounds, the bantams have a fine chance to annex the state championship.

Among those playing with the Mansfield bantams are Bob Miles, erstwhile Tiffin Junior Order guard; Bob Miller, former classy amateur lightweight boxer; Mike Hallabrin, former Mansfield high distant runner and Phil and Fred Hallabrin, brothers of Johnny Hallabrin, Ohio State university fullback.

* * *

The Bantams lost a 6 to 0 decision to the Akron early this season and are anxious to square things Sunday.

Sophs Start

Nameth, Butler Will Play Against Canton In Tyger Backfield.

A PAIR of sophomores will make their debut in the Mansfield high Tyger starting lineup when the club invades Canton to engage the Canton McKinley Bulldogs Saturday afternoon.

Louie Nameth and John Butler are the lads and Coach Paul Snyder is hoping they will be able to handle their assignments against the strong Bulldog combine.

* * *

Nameth replaces Jim Templeton, while Butler takes over Bill Doolittle's blocking duties. Both have seen some service, but their inexperience is expected to slow down the Tyger offense.

Nameth

Mansfield goes up against a tough opponent in Canton. The Bulldogs, who average 168 pounds, eight more pounds than the Tygers, have registered seven wins and were held to a tie in their other tussle.

Leading the McKinley attack is Athie Garrison, star halfback and leading individual scorer in Ohio scholastic football circles.

The colored speedster is a breakaway runner and is a constant threat. He is also a capable passer and punter.

Butler

The Tyger combine may offer more competition to the Bulldogs than they expect for the Mansfielders will be on the rebound after their upset at the hands of an underdog Ashland high team last week.

Mentor Snyder announced today that it is definite that Doolittle and Templeton will be out of the lineup. Doolittle has a badly sprained ankle, while Templeton is suffering from a hip injury. Both were hurt in the Ashland game.

Appleseed Ties Sandusky

Teams Battle to 6-6 Deadlock In Tilt.

The Johnny Appleseed junior high school football team held a strong Sandusky junior high eleven to a 6-6 tie in a contest played yesterday afternoon at Sandusky.

Both teams scored in the second period. Johnny Appleseed's touchdown came as the result of a 65-yard run by Frank Bechtel on a reverse to tie the score.

* * *

This is the first game this year in which the Sandusky team has been held to a tie. Sandusky defeated John Simpson 19 to 6 in a tilt played here recently at Stadium field.

Enterprise Wins Cup for U. S. Army

NEW YORK—(AP)— She's chiefly described as a "no 'count" mare, but big old Enterprise is giving the U. S. army cavalry something to cheer about at the 55th annual national horseshow.

For the last six years, the U. S. army's individual riders have been playing second fiddle to the military of such countries as Mexico, Chile, Ireland and France in the matter of jumping horses in international competition.

Then, along came Enterprise. Young Captain David Wagstaff, jr., of Fort Myer, Va., rode her out on the tanbark at Madison Square Garden last night, and, with the crowd of 10,000 cheering him on, piloted the old mare over the 11 difficult jumps to win the Bowman challenge cup for the U. S. army for the first time since Lieutenant Carl Ragusa did it with Dakota back in 1934.

Club In Fine Shape

Madison Team Eager To Register First Grid Win Under Lights.

HIS players in excellent physical condition, Coach Al Fendrick will send the victory hungry Madison Rams against Loudonville before a homecoming gathering under the arcs at Madison field at 8 p. m. today.

The Rams, unable to register a win in eight games, will attempt to topple the Red Birds in a contest which will end the season for the Madison combine.

Madison played good ball in losing to Bellville last week, and Fendrick believes they will hit their stride against Loudonville.

The Red Birds possess a potent running attack featuring hard-hitting Etzwiler, fullback, who was the main cog as the Red Birds dusted off a heavy Butler high outfit recently.

Mainstays in the Madison line are Bill Heichel and Bob Folmer. Heichel holds down an end position, while Folmer is the varsity center.

Both have been standouts in every game and Mentor Fendrick is depending upon them to help throttle the Loudonville ground game.

Fendrick saw a pass defeat his club at Bellville and he has been stressing pass defense in heavy workouts this week.

* * *

Whether Madison can close its season with a win remains to be seen, but the Rams have played stiffer competition than Loudonville and may come through.

* * *

Among the opponents Madison has faced were Wooster, Orrville, Dennison and Tiffin Junior Order. All possess top-notch aggregations which would give most high school elevens trouble.

SEATS STILL AVAILABLE FOR CANTON GRID GAME

A number of good seats are still available here for the Mansfield-Canton McKinley football game to be played in Canton tomorrow afternoon, George Sherman, Senior high school treasurer, announced today. All tickets sent here are for seats on the 50-yard line, Sherman was advised by Canton school officials. Price of all tickets is 75 cents. SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

DALLAS, Tex. — (U.P.) — You've heard the ol' saying about how men are men in Texas.

Well, it's not true; don't let those cowboy songs convince you it is. Forget the roundups and the ranches, and like a little dogie get along to the record.

The biggest men in Texas, the most he-mannish men, play football. They play from SMU, TCU, Arkansas, Baylor, the Texas Aggies, Rice, and Texas. Yet, since the Southwest Conference was organized in 1914, no school has been able to gather together enough men to win two championships in a row.

It is easy to win once, but the business of repeating is too much even for the double-chested men of the Lone Star state.

That is why in Dallas today the Southern Methodist Mustangs are being given a very sound chance of beating the Texas Aggies tomorrow.

The Aggies are national champions. They have won 17 straight games against all opposition. They have won nine straight conference victories. They are sparked by a man who is considered to be one of the finest—if not the finest—footbal players in the country, namely, John Kimbrough.

SMU is just another squad in the national football picture. True, the Mustangs have not been beaten, but they were tied by Pittsburgh, which everyone admitted was a mediocre ball club, even before they were beaten by Fordham which was beaten by a sickly St. Mary's.

The country may have thrown over the third-term precedent, but in Texas the second-term precedent still is strong.

Down here they just can't believe that the Aggies will do something that never has been done before. Perhaps I should explain that the Aggies will not automatically win the Southwest Conference championship if they are victorious tomorrow.

* * *

They still will have Texas and Rice to hurdle, but those who have seen Rice and Texas play say that a one-legged man carrying the Queen Mary's anchor could clear them with fathoms to spare.

week. . . . So did Editor Charles Martin of The Mansfield News-Journal.

"Said Byrer in his column the next day: "The band (Massillon) didn't perform last night because of the rain. But Massillon folks tell me it will rival Ohio State's great band in everything but size. It has 64 pieces.

"Said Martin in the Saturday edition of The News-Journal: "Massillon's mighty Tigers registered one of their most important triumphs of the season here last night—but the spectacular Massillon high band stole a portion of the show. . . .

"Going through their paces with precision, the band put on one of its greatest shows—even on the rain-soaked gridiron. First it marched down the field in quicktime. . . .

"Then the lights were turned out and every member of the band wore either a red, white or blue light. . . ." . . . Etc., etc. . . .

Wonder who was there, Byrer or Martin? . . .

Incidentally, just before the game ended the public address system informed the spectators that the Massillon band would return to the field immediately after the fray. . . . C M.

Butler High Anxious to Win From Bluejays

Bulldogs Out To Make Season a Success.

Butler high school hopes to bring its 1940 football season to a close in a blaze of glory at Butler Saturday by marking up a victory over Bellville high before a homecoming crowd

* * *

The Bulldogs, at their full strength for the first time this season, enter the contest an underdog, but will be battling to upset the Bluejays.

* * *

If weight was to decide the issue Butler would win, but Coach Bob Burgett doesn't know how his Bulldogs will work together against the light, but speedy Bellville outfit.

* * *

Injuries had riddled the Butler varsity this season and at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow the complete club will play as a unit for the first time before its coach.

* * *

Homecoming activities will be held before the game and at halftime. Pretty Eileen Kinkle is homecoming queen and she and her assistants will be honored shortly before the affray, which is scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p. m.

'Sonny' Meder Setting Pace

Youthful Kegler Pounding Maples at 200 Clip.

Clarence "Sonny" Meder is setting a fast pace in the Club bowling league for the first nine weeks of the season, according to figures released today by Harold LeMunyon, circuit secretary.

Meder, who holds the single game and three-game highs for the 1940-41 season, is busting the maples at a sensational 200 clip.

He smashed out a brilliant 701 for the three-game high, and came in with a 263 for single game honors. Trailing him in the averages is Henry Michaels with 194. Bill Donnellan is third by virtue of his 189 average.

High team honors are held by the Liederkranz and American Legion teams. The Liederkranz is high for a match with 2966, and the Legion team scored a 1025 in a single game.

The averages follow:

Harmon In Last Chance

Michigan's Great Back Has Been Stopped Twice By Minnesota Club.

By STEVE SNIDER

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Great as he is, Tommy Harmon of Michigan has failed in his two chief ambitions in football and tomorrow, in Minnesota's packed memorial stadium, he has his last chance to make good.

* * *

The setting: Michigan and Minnesota, rivals almost as old as football in the west, are undefeated and untied, last perfect record teams in the Big Ten. The Western conference title and a share in national glory almost certainly will go to the winner. A crowd of 64,000 has guaranteed a sellout.

* * *

Now for Harmon the all-America halfback from Gary, Ind., had hoped some day to lead Michigan to a Big Ten title. He never has. He also hoped to end the longest winning streak any team ever has had against Michigan and he failed in that.

The last Michigan victory over Minnesota came in 1932, when Bernie Bierman was laying the foundation of what later was to become Minnesota's golden era of football

Twice Minnesota stopped Harmon. Six games in a row have gone to the Gophers and there is no more stinging defeat in that string than last year's drubbing, 20 to 7.

Harmon and his sharp-blocking teammates, who ask nothing more from football than to spring Tommy loose on a touchdown run, have dedicated the 1940 season to athletic director Fielding H Yost. The major obstacle is Minnesota and Michigan is prepared to go all out.

Northwestern, which still hopes to win or share the conference championship despite its one point defeat by Minnesota, is worried about Illinois which is figured to have an upset somewhere in its system.

Wisconsin and Purdue have reached the unpredictable stage. Both are loaded with sophomores and speed Both have improved steadily Wisconsin has the stuff to lick Columbia, but Purdue is a decided underdog at Fordham

Iowa, too, rates the short end at Nebraska, which has come up with its best team since 1937.

* * *

Michigan State, with an even break in two games with Big Ten teams, is a slight favorite at Indiana. Michigan State scored the only two touchdowns registered against Michigan this year in losing 21 to 14, then defeated Purdue with ease.

ASHLAND COLLEGE SEEKS FIRST GRID VICTORY

ASHLAND—(AP)—Ashland college gridders sought their first victory of the season today against little Rio Grande college which has failed to score a point in four games.

Ashland has made only 12 points in losing four games and tying one. The contest is the only one of the day involving Ohio college teams.

Picks Texas To Win

Barker Also Likes Gophers, Stanford, and the Fighting Irish.

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK — (AP)—Taking another crack at the football guessing game with no money refunded cheerfully or otherwise:

Minnesota-Michigan; Might decide the Western conference title in this one, particularly if Minnesota wins. No unbeaten team in the land has waded through quite such a schedule as the Gophers. They must hold Tommy Harmon within reasonable bounds to get by undefeated Michigan. By the toss of a coin, Minnesota.

Southern Methodist-Texas A. and M.: The Mustangs are plenty tough and might break Texas A. and M.'s long string but this corner prefers to string along with the Aggies.

Stanford-Washington: Maybe this is where the Indians get off but we'll tag long with Stanford to the bitter end.

Cornell-Yale: Should be batting practice for the Big Red. Cornell. Fordham-Purdue: The Boilermakers are unlucky and Mike Byelene may not be in shape for much service, influencing this vote for Fordham. Columbia-Wisconsin: In a deep fog. Wisconsin.

Navy-Notre Dame: Taking Notre Dame on the theory the Irish can't be as bad as they looked last week. Alabama-Tulane: Out of the hat. Alabama.

Penn-Harvard: Penn. Princeton-Dartmouth: Taking Princeton. Army-Brown: A doubtful vote for Army.

Holy Cross-Mississippi: Mississippi. Manhattan-Marquette: Manhattan. Northwestern-Illinois: Northwestern. Nebraska-Iowa: Nebraska. Detroit-Texas Christian: By the coin, Detroit.

Indiana-Michigan State: An extremely shaky vote for Michigan State. Auburn-Clemson: And one of the same for Auburn. Florida-Georgia: Georgia. Kentucky-Georgia Tech: Tech seems to have collapsed. Kentucky. Louisiana State-Mississippi State: Stringing along with the Mississippians.

Furman-Virginia Tech: In a complete dither, Furman. Richmond-North Carolina: North Carolina. Duke-Davidson: Duke. North Carolina State-Wake Forest: Wake Forest. South Carolina-Kansas State: A flier on South Carolina. Virginia-Washington & Lee: Virginia. Kansas-Oklahoma: Oklahoma. Colorado-Missouri: Missouri. Tulsa-Catholic: Tulsa. Texas-Baylor: Still Texas.

Arkansas-Rice: Arkansas. Southern California-California: Southern California should be thoroughly rested and gets the nod here. Oregon-U. C. L. A.: U. C. L. A. finally should win one. Oregon State-Washington State: Oregon State. Maryland-Georgetown: Unbeaten Georgetown.

Pitt-Carnegie: Pitt should take this one. Rutgers-Lafayette: Lafayette. Syracuse-Penn State: Penn State. Temple-Villanova: Villanova. New York university-Franklin & Marshall: F. and M.

* * *

Also: Boston college over Boston university; Iowa State over Drake; Vanderbilt over Sewanee; Tennessee over Southwestern (Tennessee); William & Mary over Randolph Macon; Washington university over Virginia Military; Utah over Wyoming; Denver over Brigham Young; Colorado State over Utah State; George Washington over Bucknell; Williams over Wesleyan.

FRESHMEN LOSE TO OHIO VARSITY, 20 TO 13

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Even the Ohio State freshmen cash in on that second half "slow down" habit of the varsity Buckeye football team.

The yearlings were trailing 20 to 0 at the end of the third quarter of their annual scrimmage with the regulars yesterday. Then the freshmen, paced by Paul Sarringhaus, All-Ohio scholastic back from Hamilton, roared back with two touchdowns in the final period and turned the final score into a respectable 20 to 13 loss.

HEALTH WALK

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Walking three miles every day will strengthen your heart and lungs, according to Lawson Robertson, veteran Olympic track coach. Robertson gave this advice to a committee headed by John B. Kelly, who has been asked by President Roosevelt to organize a national physical preparedness program.

Shakeup Likely In Cubs' Ranks

Chicago President Hopes to Find Winning Combination.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— A shakeup of the Chicago Cubs, probably starting at the top, impended today as Owner-President P. K. Wrigley looked for the combination that would take the National league club out of the doldrums.

Wrigley, who like his father is the major stockholder of the Cubs, decided yesterday the club had the "wrong combination" and volunteered to resign the presidency if Charles (Boots) Weber, vice president and business manager, would take over. Weber has indicated his desire to retire from baseball.

"I don't know whether I'm doing the wrong things for the benefit of the club or not," Wrigley said. "I never was a baseball man and it's too late in life to learn enough to run the club on my own. Meanwhile I'm going to take all the blame for the showing we've made to date."

The Cubs finished in the second division this year.

"In starting at the top and going down through the ranks, I don't mean personal changes. I mean first of all to see what I'm doing wrong," he said.

He specifically absolved Cub Manager Charles Hartnett from blame, but indicated that Hartnett's fate as well as that of ailing arm pitchers Jerome (Dizzy) Dean and Clay Bryant would rest with any new management.

"I don't propose to turn over the new management, whatever it be, old tools," he said.

PLAYER SUSPENDED

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Indefinite suspension of Jack LaBay, fullback and place kicking star of the Columbus Bulls football squad of the American Pro league, for "insubordination" was announced today by Coach Phil Bucklew. The Bulls entertain the Buffalo Indians here Sunday.

Big Ten Club May Perform

Champion Team Might Get Rose Bowl Call.

CHICAGO —(INS)— The Chicago Herald American declared today it had learned "on good authority" that there still is a possibility the Big Ten football champion will meet the Pacific Coast Conference champion in the Rose Bowl on New Year's day.

Asserting that the Pacific Coast conference is eager to have the matter settled, but that "it is a question how long they will wait" for the Big Ten's answer, the newspaper added:

"Wisconsin and Minnesota have been against the plan since its proposal. Proponents of the idea, however, still hope to get the Big Ten approval in time for the 1940 champion to play at Pasadena in the coming game."

* * *

Whether the Big Ten will approve the suggestion that the champions of the two conferences meet each year in the Rose Bowl, is expected to be voted upon at a western conference meeting Dec. 6, but this may be longer than the coast conference cares to wait for a decision.

* * *

Another obstacle to straightening the matter out this year is a conference regulation giving faculty members 60 days for review and objection to any proposed change in Big Ten rules. The rule as it now stands forbids post-season competition by conference members.

SAYS REARMING HAS HANDICAPS

Iowa State Economist Claims U. S. Can Retain High Standard of Living.

(By United Press)

AMES, Ia —The United States temporarily can rearm and maintain its high standard of living at the same time, in the opinion of E D Allen, Iowa State College economist.

"We have large supplies of unused labor and resources that we can draw upon to produce airplanes, tanks and shells before we need to subtract from consumer goods production Increasing payrolls for defense industries will increase the demand for consumer goods and create a whole new production chain," he explained

Allen warned, however, "when we do reach the full use of our unemployed labor and resources, we shall have to squeeze consumption in order to expand arms.

"It appears now that the United States government will spend more than $36,000,000,000 for national defense in the six-year period which started last July 1. Within two years we may be spending eight to ten billion dollars a year.

"For the next two or three years at least it appears that the government will obtain most of the money for the defense program by borrowing, as it did in the depression, and by increased taxes falling largely on savings and not on consumption."

He predicted that because the country does not now have large numbers of unemployed laborers and because of its ability to increase facilities to produce consumer goods, both armaments and consumer goods will be available for some time

"But although we can do this for a while, the huge increase in spending is not going to be invested in plant equipment to turn out consumer goods at a later date, as is usually the case in an industrial boom"
